THE RED CROSS NEEDS YOUR HELP NOW!

POLICE SCANDAL PROBE

Let All Rally to Aid Red Cross

Of the several millions of men in the military service the overwhelming majority have taken off their uniforms and gone back to civil employment.

The war is already a fading memory with most of them and they are none the worse physically for the heroic enterprise.

There remains, however, a minority who were not so fortunate.

They were among the troops whom we sent off amid cheers and sentimental expressions of gratitude, but very few of them marched before us in triumphal parade when the war was over. Quietly and inconspicuously they were hurried from dock to hospital, where they have lain in a sense forgotten save by relatives and devoted attendants.

Every man in our army and navy was prepared to fulfil the duty we placed upon them, but not all were put to the supreme test. There can be no distinction of gratitude between those who were and those who were not, but there should be a distinction of care. Those who met the test and paid the heavy price exacted should be peculiarly the wards of the nation who sent them forth.

In one comparatively small area alone—that within the jurisdiction of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross—there are nearly 6,000 of these sufferers.

By request of the government these men and their families and all others scattered among hospitals throughout the country, together with their families, are receiving from the Red Cross the same varied, important form of service given them during the war by this great organization.

The government does not contribute one cent to further this vital work of the Red Cross. It relies upon the loyalty of the general public. The money has come and must still come from that source, or else these men whom yesterday it hailed as heroes will be deprived of the aid so essential to the welfare of their crippled bodies and troubled minds.

We cannot individually or collectively give this aid as our trained and willing servant the Red Cross can. It is this fact that is voiced most strongly in the appeal of this, the fourth Roll Call of the organization.

We have built up from among ourselves this unique body of workers whose hands and minds have become expert and whose spirit of service knows no boundaries, creeds or class distinctions.

It is ready to aid in peace as in war, through its Disaster Units that during the past year gave assistance to 80,000 citizen-victims of flood, fire and cyclone, and to communities of farmers impoverished by drought or plagues of locusts; through its Home Service Extension that has helped the families of men out of work; through its thousand Public Health nurses who have cared for the needy sick in town and country; through its lessons in Home Hygiene by which it has already helped to prepare 92,000 American women and girls to safeguard their homes against disease, such as the great epidemics of influenza; through its Health Centres that as neighbor to neighbor aim to furnish information on health and all matters pertaining thereto to all citizens.

The Boston American unhesitatingly asks its readers to rally to the support of the Red Cross that its work and its spirit may continue to be factors in the forces that are operating for the public good.

LIEUTENANT HOPPE TO BE MADE CAPTAIN

Lieutenant Bernard J. Hoppe, in command of Boston's traffic squad since its formation, will be promoted to the rank of captain within a few days.

Lieutenant Hoppe took a civil service examination for promotion on Saturday last. He has been a lieutenant in the department since November 27 of last year. On that date Commissioner Curtis designated him to take charge of the new traffic force of 130 men.

Prior to being made lieutenant, Hoppe had for almost four years been a sergeant, first for six months at Jamaica Plain and then for the balance of his term at police headquarters.

ROBBED OF $500,000 JEWELS

Beautiful Divorcee, Formerly of Boston, Bound and Gagged in Boudoir

Scores of New York detectives are today trying to solve the $500,000 "mystery robbery" of Charlotte K. Parrish Palmer, former Boston music student and musical comedy star.

Miss Palmer, a wealthy divorcee, reported that three men in disguise surprised her in the boudoir of her palatial home on East Ninetieth street, New York, tied and gagged her and two loyal servants and leisurely ransacked the house until dawn.

Jewels worth $500,000 were taken. Chief among them was a $400,000 pearl necklace.

Seven household servants are being held pending an explanation of the elements of mystery in the strange crime.

Miss Palmer said the men wore wigs and mustaches, and one was a suave Frenchman of the Raffles type, who joked merrily with her and offered her cigarettes and other comforts.

Police and detectives are frankly baffled by the puzzle of how three burglars could have gotten into the boudoir of a house occupied by seven servants loyal to their mistress.

VISITED MRS. SIDNEY DREW.

Miss Palmer returned to her home late, after a reception at the home of Mrs. Sidney Drew in Monmouth, N. J., she has told the police. She professes to know nothing of the burglars, beyond the fact that they called the Frenchman "Pierre."

Miss Palmer, as she was known on the stage, was the daughter of Mrs. Florence V. King, who at one time lived on Worcester street. She studied music under private tutors here.

She made her stage debut in Boston as a show girl in "It Happened in Nordland."

She married James C. Parrish, Harvard graduate and relative of the Vanderbilts, from whom she was later divorced.

Following her Boston debut she studied in London, sang at the Empire Theatre there, and returned to America to take a leading part with the Lew Fields Musical Stock Company.

She has provided the New York police with the following list of stolen jewels:

GOT $400,000 NECKLACE.

The list of the stolen articles, insured for only $54,000, furnished by Mrs. Palmer to the police, follows:

Necklace, containing 210 pearls with large pear-shaped pearl clasp, valued at $400,000.

Two hairpins set with diamonds.

Platinum bracelet set with diamonds and sapphires.

POLICE REINSTATEMENT BLOCKED

Civil Service Commissioner Payson Dana today blocked one of the two methods by which the striking Boston policemen might seek reinstatement. He announced that he would not raise the ban which forbids the strikers from taking the civil service examination for re-appointment, saying that the relinquishment of their A. F. of L. charter did not alter their status. The only other means of obtaining reinstatement is through legislative action, and Republican House Leader Benjamin L. Young declared today that he knew of no action in that direction.

$1,000 Penalty for New Bedford Hotel Man; Three Others Also Sentenced

The largest fine yet imposed for violation of the prohibition laws was paid in the Federal court today by Timothy P. Collins of the Waverly Hotel, New Bedford, who paid $1,000.

Collins pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with maintaining a common nuisance at the hotel in question. The fine was imposed by Judge Hale.

John Machado of Westport pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with manufacturing nineteen gallons of liquor, and was sentenced to thirty days in the New Bedford jail. Joaquin Carvalho of Providence pleaded guilty to manufacturing two gallons and was fined $100. Frank Travis of Rehoboth was fined $200 for possession of two gallons of liquor.

His physical condition, it was stated, was extremely good and was showing improvement right along.

FOUR SLAIN BY BLACK AND TANS

Boy of Sixteen Among Victims of British Police in Cork Reprisals

Four more civilians, including a sixteen-year-old member of the Boy Scouts, were killed at Cork, Ireland, today by "Black and [illegible] the assassination of Police Sergeant O'Donoghue. Dispatches from the Irish city say that further violence is feared.

Following the murders the city cowered in the grip of a reign of terror for nearly five hours, the "Black and Tans" raking it with rifle fire and scattering bombs.

The four victims were included in a party of five prominent civilians seized and forcibly taken from their homes, one being a well known merchant named Coleman.

"A party of 'Black and Tan' policemen knocked at the door of our home and demanded my husband," said Mrs. Coleman. "My husband heard the commotion and when he went to the door to see what it was about he was shot dead."

Many stores were looted during the night.

O'BRIEN WARNED.

At the same time it was reported from London that Arthur O'Brien, prominent Sinn Feiner and a close friend of the late Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork, had received a warning from the "Black and Tans" that unless he leaves London within twenty-four hours he will be killed.

It is believed that the latest outrages in Ireland will hurry the ap-

Geneva, Nov. 18.—The newspaper La Suisse published a report today that Lord Robert Cecil, representative of South Africa in the League of Nations assembly, will move to admit Germany into the league before the present meeting breaks up.

The newspaper added that a canvass of the delegates shows all neutrals except Spain probably would support the admission of Germany.

SWINDLED BANK BY NEW TRICK

East Boston Man Given Six Months to Repay Money After Being Found Guilty

Pasqualino Coglaino, who was found guilty in Superior Court of the theft of $1011.75 from the Sumner Savings Bank of East Boston, has been given six months by Judge John P. Brown in which to make restitution.

The scheme by which Cogliano obtained the money from the bank differs from ordinary attempts at fraud and as far as known is without precedent.

The deposit stood in the name of Guiseppe Giannasca, an aged Italian laborer, who could neither read nor write. Cogliano was aware of that fact and one day appeared at the bank and represetned himself as Giannasca. He told the officials that he could not read or write and had lost his bankbook.

At the suggestion of the bank officers Cogliana advertised for three successive weeks the loss of the deposit book, and at the end of that period a new book in the name of Giannasca was given to Cogliana.

The latter took the book to an Italian bank and arranged for an exchange of the money into Italian lires, and the Sumner Savings Bank turned over Giannasca's deposit.

Six months later Giannasca went to the bank with his book and asked to have interest computed. The matter was then put into the hands of the police, and several weeks elapsed before Cogliana was apprehended.

Needy Families Plead for Xmas Baskets

Letters pour into the Boston American office in every mail from all sections of Greater Boston asking help from the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund. If readers of this newspaper could read one day's pleas for assistance and then go into the homes of the writers with a Basket Fund investigator they would not hesitate to contribute to the cause.

Contents of the letters received show that unemployment is one of the principal causes of hardship this Winter. Many families that have been barely existing during the reign of high prices are now facing real hardship because some member of the family has been suddenly thrown out of work.

The Basket Fund Editor wishes to repeat, for the information of persons not familiar with the work of the fund, that every cent contributed goes toward the purchase of food. All overhead expenses of the undertaking are borne by the Boston American. If a person gives a dollar to the fund he is assured that one hundred cents will be spent for food.

All cases are investigated so that the contributor is doubly assured that what he gives goes where he pointment of a special committee to be sent from this country to investigate atrocities there at first hand, in response to invitations from prominent persons in England.

REIGN OF TERROR FOR HOURS IN CITY OF CORK

KILLED IN CORK.

Police Sergeant O'Donoghue was killed shortly after 6 o'clock while on his way to the police barracks in Cork. A small group of men armed with revolvers fired on him and escaped.

The "Black and Tans" then took possession of the city, and in some parts of the residential section the bullets flew so thickly that inmates of the houses crouched on the floors to avoid being hit by shots which penetrated the windows. Night workers returning to their homes early today also reported that they had been fired on.

American Committee Will Go to Ireland

Washington, Nov. 18.—In response to invitations from prominent persons in England, a special committee will be sent to Ireland to investigate stories of atrocities there at first hand, it was announced by the American Commission on Ireland here today.

The committee, it was stated, will be chosen from the commission, which includes Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Frederick C. Howe, former commissioner of immigration, Jane Addams of Chicago and James Maurer, labor leader.

One of the invitations was in the form of a round-robin signed by British labor leaders including Arthur Henderson, Robert Smillie, William Adamson, C. T. Cramp, Robert Williams and George Lansburg.

Mayor Dunne of Balbriggan, Ireland, which was destroyed by the "Black and Tan" British police, and Mayor Morgan of Thurles, damaged in a similar raid, have arrived in Washington and were to testify before the commission today.

Stories of brutality that equalled those in the darkest days of the war were unfolded by Denis Morgan, Mayor of Thurles, and John Derham, Mayor of Balbriggan, Ireland, who are in Washington to testify before the commission.

Mr. Durham declared that on September 20 the town of Balbriggan was almost wiped out in a raid by 300 Black and Tan police, and several persons murdered.

"A new Black and Tan police had just been appointed for our district," he said. "On the night of the nineteenth he was celebrating his new appointment in a public house of Balbriggan with a company of other Black and Tans.

"Finally the proprietor appealed to the local police, who declared they could do nothing. The Black and Tans withdrew. They had hardly left before a fusillade rang out and the new inspector fell dead, while another Black and Tan was wounded.

"The next morning came the 'reprisal' raid. The Black and Tans entered the town firing promiscuously and smashing in windows with the butts of their rifles.

"They were well supplied with petrol and set fire to buildings in many places at the same time. Soon the town was in flames, particular pains being taken to destroy the hosiery mills, which were the chief source of employment for the people. Fleeing women and children were jeered by the police, who fired at them, as one expressed it, 'just to see them cut and run.'"

Mr. Morgan described a typical raid, of which Thurles has several times been the victim.

"One bitter night last January myself my wife and child were awakened by a fusillade of shots The 'Black and Tans' were at us again, and as our house occupied an exposed position at a junction of two streets we lost no time in running to the cellar.

"The raiders proceeded slowly and methodically, shooting out all the windows as they went. When they reached my houseafter seeing that the windows were smashed, one entered and fired a dozen shots into the hallway. The next morning I counted thirty-two bullet holes on the outside and all the windows were smashed. The condition of my house describes the condition in which all the buildings along that street wede left."

Wilson's Daily Reminder of 'Self-Determination' for Erin

For many weeks more must Woodrow Wilson look out daily from the White House and behold this endless procession of Irish sympathizers around the fountain at the entrance to the grounds of the Executive Mansion. The purpose of the demonstration is to commemorate the death of Lord Mayor MacSwiney for the cause of self-determination for Ireland. More than 1,000 persons joined in the procession on the first day. With the marchers clad mostly in black the symbolism of their demonstration grows more grim with each successive day, as did the hunger strike of MacSwiney.

MacSwiney's Widow to Tell Erin's Plight

London, Nov. 18.—Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, widow of the late Lord Mayor Terence MacSwiney, who died in Brixton Prison after his long hunger strike, left London for Cork today, en route to America.

She will board the liner Celtic at Queenstown on November 24, after a week spent at home with her little daughter whom she has not seen since she left for London last August She said:

"I am going to America to make an appeal before the American commission, which is studying the Irish situation, as a matter of public duty. I would rather not have made the journey, but I am ready to sacrifice myself to further the cause for which my husband died.

"I shall answer freely and unreservedly any questions which the American commissioners desire to put to convince them that 'Terry' was illegally arrested and imprisoned, as he himself protested during the court-martial. I shall advance the view that the Irish republic is in existence already, that it has its own parliament, its own army, is building up its own legal system, collecting its own revenues.

"The fight for freedom is bound to go on with greater determination as the roll of martyrs lengthens."

MANY IMMUNE TO TUBERCULOSIS

70 Pct. of Boston Residents Permanently Free of Dread Disease, Doctor Says

Seventy per cent. of the adults of Boston have been unconsciously inoculated against tuberculosis, and the remaining thirty per cent. should be, according to Colonel George E. Bushnell, speaking at the annual meeting of the Boston Tuberculosis Association at No. 3 Joy street this afternoon.

Colonel Bushnell, who was in charge of all the army's anti-tuberculosis work during the war, de lared that the manifest cases of uberculosis are the "failures in berculosis infection."

The urgent need of educating others to protect their young children from the dreaded white plague was stressed by Colonel Bushnell as the surest means of raising the percentage of successful vaccinations gainst tuberculosis.

Dr. George S. C. Badger, president f the local association, outlined a lan for study of the problems of infection from eating utensils and the ustomary methods of washing these, nd for sending nurses to care for uberculosis cases in the various hospitals until the patients are removed o the special hospitals where they can receive proper care for their disase.

Seymour H Stone, secretary of the ssociation, in his annual report, howed there has been a steady decline in the number of tuberculosis cases in Greater Boston ever since the iscovery of the germ in 1882, except uring the war period. Last year's ures showed a total number of eaths from the white plague in this ity to have been 1,367, or 18.29 per ,000 population.

For this decrease, said the secretary, much credit can be assigned to he medical research work, establishment of dispensaries and hospitals, as well as the building up of eneral public health by factory, maernity, baby and school nursing.

The following officers were elected or the coming year: George S C. adger, M. D., president; James J. Minot, M. D., vice-presiednt; George Mumford, treasurer, and Miss abel F. Hyams, clerk.

Washburn Makes 'Honest' Return

Departing from the custom of filing merely a statement of expenses, Robert M. Washburn, who was an independent candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, said to the Secretary of State that his return, unlike some others, was an honest attempt to comply with the Corrupt Practices law.

To his official return, showing that he had expended $2,868.25 in his campaign, Washburn added this note:

"This return, in amount, is less than that allowed by law, $3,000, and small when spread over a million voters.

"Unlike some returns, it is an attempt to comply with the law, which should be amended so that the State assumes all proper campaign expenses, thereby enabling the man or woman without $3,000 to be elected to high public office."

FINDS MAN DEAD IN DOORWAY

Cambridge Citizen Falls Over Body Identified as Somerville Resident

The body of a man believed to be Francis McMahon, thirty-eight years old of Somerville, was found today in the doorway of the apartment house at No. 128 Bridge street, East Cambridge. According to Medical Examiner Dow the man died from natural causes.

The body was found by John Goncalves, who fell over it as he entered the dimly-lighted hallway. He notified the Cambridge police and the man was identified from papers in his pocket. The Somerville police have been asked to notify his relatives.

McMahon had evidently been dead several hours. According to Mrs. Enos Evans, an occupant of the house, she saw a man answering the dead man's identity groping about the hallway late last night. She asked him what he wanted, she says, but thought no more of the incident.

NEGRO ADMITS BRUTAL CRIME

Attacks Woman With Hatchet and Fires Clothing Near Baltimore; Death Results

By International News Service.

Baltimore, Nov. 18.—Charlie Roberson, a sixteen-year-old negro, was rushed to the Baltimore City Jail early today for safe keeping after confessing, the police say, to one of the most revolting crimes in the history of the State.

The youth is said to have acknowledged that on Monday he attacked Mrs. Arthur Hightman in Frederic county, with a hatchet, and then set fire to her clothing. The woman died yesterday.

So intense was the feeling against the negro that Frederic county authorities rushed him here for safe keeping. He expressed relief when he was safely lodged in the city jail.

The negro had been employed about the Hightman home. Mrs. Hightman was in a semi-conscious condition when found by her husband. Before she died she told her relatives that the negro had attacked her and poured oil on her clothing.

RHALLIS TAKES HELM IN GREECE

Monarchist Takes Oath as Premier; Constantine Friendly to Allies

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 18.—Georgios Rhallis, a monarchist, has taken oath as premier of Greece, said a news agency dispatch from Athens this afternoon. Premier Rhallis' first official act was to call upon Admiral Coundouriotis to reign as regent.

Former Premier Venizelos has left Greece for Nice in a yacht escorted by a British warship.

Another dispatch from Athens said soldiers and police joined in a pro-Constantine demonstration and acclaimed Constantine as King.

Former King Constantine made friendly overtures to the allies in an interview today. He denied he ever intended to throw Greece into the World War on side of Germany.

Constantine expects a plebiscite in Greece upon his return to the throne before the beginning of he new year. "I never had an opportunity to state my side of the case during the controversy over the position of Greece during the war," said the ex-King. "For more than three years I have been cut off from the world. All my letters from Athens were stopped. I never had the slightest intention of putting Greece in the conflict upon the side of Germany. Great prominence was given to a telegram I sent to the ex-Kaiser, but I sent several others when he was pressing me to go over to his side. I assured him that I would not break the neutrality of Greece. I have always had admiration and liking for the English people."

WILSON MAY 'SEND' HARDING TO MEXICO

New Orleans, La., Nov. 18.—The proposed visit of President-elect Harding to a Mexican port may hinge on action by President Wilson, it was learned today. It is understood some friends of the Mexican government have intimated to the White House they would feel it a very gracious thing if President Wilson should let Senator Harding represent him in a meeting with Obregon.

Mrs. Palmer was with DeWolf Hopper in "Wang" back in the nineties. She came to New York from Chicago about three years ago and purchased her present residence on Ninetieth street, where she has lived alone since that time. She is about thirty-eight years old.

SURPRISED IN BOUDOIR.

According to the account given by Mrs. Palmer to the police she went to the reception on Monday evening and returned to the house at 1:50 o'clock Tuesday morning. While she was disrobing in her boudoir two men entered, informed her that they were robbers and "wanted her stuff." A third man waited outside the door, she said.

A handkerchief was tied about her head covering the eyes and another handkerchief was stuffed into her mouth. Leaving one man to guard her, the other robbers proceeded to ransack the house after removing a pearl necklace and several diamond rings from her person.

Two servants attracted from the basement by the noise were held under guard until the looting was completed.

OFFERS HER DRINK AND SMOKE.

Mrs. Palmer added a few details as to the gentlemanly conduct of one of the robbers today. She said, that while the other two men were ransacking the entire house for a diamond collar, which they appeared certain was there, she was under the guard of a gentlemanly robber named Pierre.

Pierre, she said, offered a drink from a silver flask, but she refused He then suggested a cigarette, but she didn't care for that either. Then he removed her gag and told her she could speak if she would speak quietly. He told her that it was only fair that she should have some small comfort in her unpleasant position and asked her to say what it would be. She asked for her smelling salts and a throat spray.

Pierre brought the smelling salts, and from that time until dawn, when the robbers gave up the search, he sprayed Mrs. Palmer's throat from time to time.

DIVORCED BY HARVARD MAN.

Mrs. Palmer was divorced on March 1, 1916. James C. Parrish, Harvard graduate and well known in society, at the time secured interlocutory decree of divorce from her in Supreme Court at White Plains, N. Y. Mrs. Palmer at that time said her mother was Mrs F. King of Brooklyn.

Parrish and Mrs. Palmer were married in Europe in 1910.

THINK OF THE PAMPERED FIFI WIDENER WASHING DISHES!

HOUSEWIFE HER ROLE JUST NOW

Mate of Carter Leidy Leads Life Befitting Partner of a Lowly Shop Apprentice

Instead of ringing for her maid at 8:30 and ordering breakfast in bed as she used to do when at home in the manificent house of her multi-millionaire father, Joseph E. Widener, Philadelphia traction king, Fifi Leidy now bounces out of bed at the call of an alarm clock, set to sound at 5:30 in the morning. Her husband has to punch the time clock at the factory at 7, and she must cook his breakfast before he goes.

Instead of clambering out of bed at eight, taking his time for dressing and breakfast, before riding in his automobile to his classes at the University of Pennsylvania, Carter Randolph Leidy, scion of one of the Quaker City's eldest and most prominent families, now hops up at 5:30 these cold mornings, hurries into his clothes, bolts the breakfast his wife prepares and runs up the street to his work in the American Car & Foundry plant in Berwick, Pa., where he is earning $2.50 a day.

Berwick, Pa., Nov. 18.—Berwick boasts one of the most democratic towns in the United States. Probably that is one reason why fate chose it for trying out the stuff in Fifi Widener, daughter of the traction magnate, and Carter Randolph Leidy, member of one of Philadelphia's most distinguished families. Certainly that is one reason why the people of the town are glad the young Leidys are living here.

Fifi Leidy is far too busy with the duties of her household to pay much attention to what her neighbors are thinking or saying of her. She finds cooking her husband's meals, sweeping and dusting their new home, and attending to the hundred details of the housekeeper's job takes all her time.

And then she appears to have forgotten that papa is worth millions, and is a power in the land. Berwick appreciates that forgetfulness.

HUSBAND "MAKING GOOD."

And her husband is "making good" at the factory. No one to see him hustling up the street to his work in the morning or swinging homeward after that work is finished would amagine that he fancied himself a bit better than the ordinary "hunkie" who walks beside him.

As a matter of fact, he does not. He is there to learn how to win his own way, and he intends doing just that.

Apparently he has forgotten the furore created by his elopement with Fifi Widener last January, the night before the date set for the great coming-out party planned for the girl by her parents at their wonderfully beautiful home, Lynnewood Hall, outside of Philadelphia.

He has settled down to work for the next two years as an apprentice in the factory of which his uncle is vice-president. That fact, though, is the last one that comes into young Leidy's head. He is standing on his own feet.

When he ran away with Fifi Widener, Leidy was a freshman at the University of Pennsylvania. They went to Knoxville, Tenn., and there they were married. When they returned home they were welcomed by their families and the way was made smooth for them. But Leidy insisted that he wanted to make his own way; that he must earn the living for himself and his wife.

MUST SEE JOB THROUGH.

So arrangements were made by William C. Dickerman, Leidy's uncle, director and official of the great car works, for placing the young man in the plant to learn the business.

It was impressed upon Leidy that if he tackled the job he must see it through, and he is making good with that idea in mind.

He rubs elbows with the mixed workers of the big plant, presenting his admission card along with the rest when the whistle blows for the morning tasks to begin. He has gone through the rigid physical tests imposed upon all employes of the plant and passed with flying colors.

Day after day, he goes to the drafting room of the factory, where he began his apprenticeship, and where he will remain until he becomes expert in reading and making blue prints, after which he is going into the casting department—no white collar job that—and thence by gradual stages through the wheel foundry, the forging rooms, the rolling mill, the steel division, machine shops, wooden frame department, moulding room and every other department of the great plant.

When he is through he may not be an expert mechanic, but, at least, he will have a complete idea of how cars are made.

HAS MUCH STUDYING.

At night, after his day's work is over, there is much studying to be done, in heavy technical tomes. It is rarely before 9:30 that he can afford to call it a day and go to bed.

It's a vast change from his former life. In those old days he took his breakfast at home, rode to college in his motor car in time for classes at nine. He lunched at the fraternity clubhouse, attended a baseball or football game, the play, a concert or a game of billiards, pool or even "draw," dined at home, or with friends, studied a bit, and climbed into bed after midnight.

He was a member of the officers' training camp at Princeton, but did not qualify for a commission before the armistice came.

When he finished his honeymoon and returned home he had never done a single tap of real work. It's different now.

And Fifi? Fifi was her father's darling. She did what she pleased. Her maid, her chauffeur, her cars, her friends and her own private suite of rooms belonged to her. She danced through life happy, gay as a gaudy butterfly in the sunshine of a June day. Never once had she had to dress herself—her maid did that for her. Never had she cooked anything more important than fudge, and as for making a bed, sweeping a room, dusting the stair rail—never!

DEVOTED TO ATHLETICS.

It's true that she was devoted to athletics and was an expert at tennis and golf—but that's not work, as everyone knows.

The people of Berwick knew this, so when, some weeks ago, Dr. Joseph Leidy, father of Carter, arrived in Berwick and leased the only available home in the village, a large three-story frame house in what might be termed in any other town the "exclusive section," Berwick winked a reflective wink and set itself to look for the arrival of the entourage of the young pair.

The price of the house is said to have been $175 a month, twice what the factory pays Leidy. It is modestly furnished, nothing like the beautiful Lynnwood Hall home of the young bride, or Dr. Leidy's home, but it is encircled by a five-foot hedge and the rear faces on the grounds about the Lutheran church. It is a pretty location and the new tenants enthuse over it.

Then a week or two ago Fifi and Carter arrived in town. Their baggage was piled in their automobile, together with two Belgian hounds, Fifi's inseparable companions.

It was late, so late that the Morton house, only hotel in town, had closed its dining room, but the lunchroom near the depot was open, and there Carter and Fifi sat them down on stools and had a Hamburger steak sandwich and coffee before going on to their home.

Fifi has but one servant, an aged maid of allwork, who assists the mistress of the house. The mistress insists upon doing her own cooking, and her own marketing. And when it comes to the latter, the business sharpness which has made Joseph E. Widener what he is shows plainly in his daughter's determination to get her full money's worth.

Plea for More Religion in Business Made at Boot and Shoe Dinner

A plea for more religion in business affairs was made by a resolution passed by the Boston Boot and Shoe Club at its 206th dinner in the Copley-Plaza Hotel. The wholesale cancellation of contracts in the country was deplored by the organization, which went on record as believing in "the inviolability and not the vulnerability of contracts."

This step was taken following an address by Oliver M. Fisher, president of the club, and a member of the executive committee of the Unitarian Campaign for $3,000,000. Mr. Fisher declared that the country was facing a condition of chaos owing to the steadily increasing practice of breaking contracts.

ADDITION OF $70,000.

The eighth day of the Unitarian campaign saw an additional $70,000 added to the growing total, which reached $1,117,328.

The largest single contribution came from Arlington, which sent in reports showing $15,000 collected. The second in the list was from the First Parish Church of Salem, which reported $8,000. East Boston has raised its quota of $2,500, and the South Boston Unitarian Church reported $1,500.

OVER THE TOP.

Among the other parishes which have gone over the top, are Holton, $500; Brighton, $500; Brookfield, $500; Grafton, $2,000; Groton, $1,000; Needham, $1,040; Harvard $1,500; Hubbardson, $500; Leominster, $7,240; Gloucester, $2,000, Braintree, All Soul's, $2,000; Westwood, $3,057, and Sherborn, $1,950.

More than three hundred campaigners attended the luncheon given in New York today in honor of former President Taft, George F. Baker, president of the First National Bank of New York, presided.

Ernest G. Adams was the chief speaker at a luncheon of the campaigners in Detroit at noon today, according to dispatches from that city.

Fitchburg Kiddies See First Snow

Fitchburg, Nov. 18.—"Snow, beautiful snow," frightened 11 small Egyptian children into hysterics here when they saw it for the first time. They are the offspring of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hanna of Beech street, recently arrived from the banks of the Nile.

The children arose to find the ground covered overnight with "cold cotton." They immediately set up an outcry and, falling on their knees, demanded protection of High Heaven.

Papa Hanna, awakened by the noise, was none too easy in his mind himself, but he picked his way to the home of an interpreter, the only man he knew, and had it all explained to him.

Later the children were sent to school, after considerable tearful protest. Teacher and the other pupils treated them to a snowball battle, and they went home reconciled to the latest phenomenon in this strange, new land.

SEEKS $25,000 HEART BALM

Providence Beauty Says Alleged Fiance's Love Cooled After Betrothal

Providence, R. I., Nov. 18.—Oscar Klemer, defendant in the suit for $25,000 damages for alleged breach of promise to wed, took the stand when the trial of the case was resumed before Judge Doran and a jury in the Superior Court here today.

Florence R. Rubin, the exceedingly attractive plaintiff, sat in the court room surrounded by her relatives and friends, but hardly once turned her eyes toward the witness.

On the stand as a witness Miss Rubin told the court the whole story of her broken heart.

She met Klemer last December, she said, and he proposed and was accepted on January 18 of this year. Immediately he began showering her with gifts, including a diamond ring, a handsome wrist watch, a necklace and other trinkets.

Washington's Birthday was chosen by her mother for the big engagement party, to which scores of their friends and relatives were invited.

That night, the pretty witness asserted, Klemer appeared charmed with her and with the prospect of marriage.

"All we need now is a rabbi," she quoted him as saying.

No date was set for the wedding, but it was to have been in June or July, Klemer favoring the later date. Shortly after the engagement party she said, she began to notice that Klemer's ardor appeared to be growing cool, and in April she taxed him with this. He admitted it, saying that he could not banish from his mind the thought of his first wife, and feared he would be unable to make Miss Rubin happy.

Later, she added, he told her flatly that he did not love her and would not be able to marry her.

On cross-examination by Attorney James J. McGovern, Miss Rubin described Klemer's attitude toward her during the courtship and engagement, as being most affectionate. He kissed her "hundreds of time," she testified.

Open Winter Likely, Animal Signs Say

Westville, Nov. 18.—Bullfrogs, muskrats and John Costas predict an open Winter. John is one of the best known unofficial forecasters in Massachusetts.

He points to the fact that muskrats are building their homes high above the usual watermark, which he says is a sure sign.

Bullfrogs are still lingering in pond waters, which is another indication. Last of all, heavy rains after freezing clinch the matter, according to Westville's weather prophet.

DUAL SHOOTING AT WORCESTER

Husband Wounds Wife, Then Self, After Quarrel; Both Near Death

Worcester, Nov. 18.—A double shooting that may result in two fatalities took place here when John Pegaga, twenty-eight years old, enraged at his wife's refusal to become reconciled with him after a domestic quarrel, fired two shots at her and then turned the revolver on himself.

Pegaga is unconscious from three bullet wounds in his head and neck which he inflicted upon himself after shooting his wife in the chest and back after she had refused to become reconciled with him.

When the police arrived at the Pegaga home they found the wife unconscious, although Pegaga, fast losing his senses, was able to explain his act. He had shot himself in the mouth, the right temple and in the neck.

Pegaga told the police he was sorry he had shot his wife and he hoped she would live. He wanted to die, he said, because she had ceased to love him.

The trouble began when, after a quarrel Pegaga packed his things and left the house. The next morning he returned and asked forgiveness. His wife refused to have anything to do with him and is said to have admitted that another had taken his place in her affections.

Home Building Drops 27 P. C. in Month

With more and more people in search of housing accommodations, the amount of building done in Massachusetts last month was 27 per cent. less than in September and in the previous three months fell off 17.6 per cent. from the same period a year ago.

Returns filed at the office of the State Department of Labor and Industries and made public today show that the aggregate of new buildings and alterations in 36 cities of the State was $6,269,500 for September, while in October the total fell to $4,552,000.

The estimated cost of new buildings and alterations for which permits were issued in 37 cities during the months of July, August and September was $22,898,000, a decrease of 23 per cent. from the preceding three months, and a decrease of 17.6 per cent from the corresponding three months of 1919.

Another indication that fewer new houses are being constructed for dwelling purposes lay in the fact that the percentage of money expended for alterations increased from 20 to 34 per cent.

These are the comparative figures from some of the principal cities:

City.	Oct., 1920.	Sept., 1920.
Fall River	$213,545	$248,180
Lawrence	94,700	270,450
Worcester	298,945	397,315
Haverhill	39,675	57,300
Brockton	37,835	94,185
Springfield	160,500	339,105
Leominster	13,600	24,000
New Bedford	509,700	529,880
Holyoke	47,925	411,725
Boston	914,354	2,047,385

Cities in which building operations increased during the two months were: Lowell, which increased from $87,585 in September to $122,810 for October; Attleboro, from $4,300 to $39,575; Chicopee, from $64,200 to $121,850; Fitchburg, from $78,465 to $171,980; Marlboro, from $5,800 to $12,700; Methuen, from $67,850 to $72,005, and North Adams, from $3,350 to $22,450.

LACK OF WORK AT HIGH POINT

Yet All But Textile Trades Show Betterment Here Over August Figures

Figures made public today by the State Department of Labor and Industries show that the percentage of unemployment in Massachusetts for the month of September was 19.3, the highest since March 1908.

The figures are based on the reports of 1,103 unions, with a membership of 254,000.

Of this 16.1 per cent. was due to lack of work or material. This also was the highest rate for that cause since March, 1908.

"Slacking up of the textile industry may be said to be the cause for this increase," says the department's report, "as the building trades, boot and shoe industry, iron and steel and the printing and allied trades all show a slight decrease in unemployment from the August figures."

There has been a decided decrease in the number of strikes and lockouts reported to date, says the report, only eight being recorded since October 1.

The boot and shoe industry is the worst sufferer from unemployment, with a percentage of 40.9. Textiles come next with 26.2 per cent., followed by building trades with 5.3 per cent.; transportation, 5.4 per cent.; iron and steel industry, 9 per cent.; printing, 2.5, and all others 17.1 per cent.

LEGION MAN ELECTED TO $11,500 JUDGESHIP

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 18.—Although he spent the greater part of the campaign in the hospital, suffering from wounds received at the second battle of the Marne, John Faust, a member of Charles A. Learned Post, No. 1, of the American Legion here, was elected to a judgeship on the recorder's bench in the recent elections. Judge Faust served overseas with the French at Verdun and later with the 16th Infantry. His salary will be $11,500 a year.

FORTUNE LOST TO 'BABY IRENE'

Court Decides Child Is Not Legal Heir to Share in $3,000,000 Estate

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Mrs. Dolly Matters is not the mother of "Baby Irene," according to a decision of the Supreme Court of Ontario, and, according to the dispatches, the child cannot hope to share in the $3,000,000 estate of the late Frederick Matters.

The case had been in the courts more than two years. Mr. Matters was married after he had passed the allotted three score and ten years. Mrs. Matters, a young woman, went to Canada for the Summer. She claimed a child was born while she was ill at the Misericordia Hospital, Ottawa.

The will of the millionaire provided that if a child was born it should inherit $3,000,000. If there was no issue his estate should be divided among other members of his family.

When Dolly Matters claimed $3,000,000 in the name of her child, relatives of the millionaire contended she was not the mother of the baby. Litigation was started in the Illinois courts but shifted to Canada where Mrs. Matters claimed the child was born. The baby had been christened "Irene."

Relatives of Mr. Matters introduced evidence to show "Baby Irene" was not the daughter of Mrs. Matters, but was the child of Margaret Ryan, an Ottawa working girl.

He points out that during the past year there have been fifty resignations from the college faculty.

MISSING WOMAN 'IN HIDING'

Mrs. Whitney's Stepson and Others Confident She Was Not Murdered

Langdon, N. H., Nov. 18.—Chester Whitney Doolittle today joined the growing host of people expressing the belief that his stepmother, Mrs. William B. Whitney, is alive and in voluntary hiding.

He denied statements quoting him as saying she had been slain and buried on his father's farm.

"I would much sooner expect to see her walk into the yard than hear of her body being found," he declared.

Young Doolittle's statement did much to confirm the growing belief that the missing woman was in a convent, where she took sanctuary to avoid further religious and personal conflicts with her husband.

STATEMENT AT FARM.

The stepson's belief was shared by William B. Whitney, former husband of the missing woman, who is in State Prison on a forgery charge, and who has several times been sharply questioned as to his wife's whereabouts.

Chester's statement was made at his father's farm, after he had returned there to find Mrs. Mandy French, his father's housekeeper, had left.

She had quarrelled with him because he said she was too friendly with his father, and that was the reason Whitney, Sr., left Langdon shortly before he was arrested.

"I hope Mandy French has flown the country like my stepmother did," he said.

His hope was shortly dissipated, for she returned. She said she "didn't want to cook for Chester Doolittle, but was back on the advice of the authorities."

In view of the failure to find a body on the Whitney farm, the detectives were today searching for the missing woman in convents and other institutions throughout the country.

CONSCIENCE STRICKEN.

According to detectives Mrs. Whitney had become conscience stricken over her withdrawal from the religious belief of her father and mother when she ran off and married Whitney and gave him her money to buy a farm in this town, where they settled.

Dr. B. T. Mousley, of Walpole, formerly of this town, admitted that Mrs. Whitney called on him the night of her disappearance. Whitney previously called and told of the bother he had with Mrs. Whitney and suggested that the doctor tell her to go West for her health.

All this was known to Mrs. Kirkpatrick, and when Mrs. Whitney intimated her intention to go West, the former cautioned her to go slow, it is asserted. Frenzied over stories concerning her husband's attentions to other women, she came to the conclusion the only thing for her to do was to have an understanding with him.

She told Whitney, it is said, that she did not consider herself married to him in the eyes of the church. He said she had a right to that opinion. She said she would never darken his door again, nor would he hear from her under any circumstances.

HARBORED BY FRIEND.

Mrs. Whitney slammed the door, walked to the home of Mrs. Kirkpatrick; her friend, and told her what had happened. The later put her up for the night and told her not to worry, that Whitney would never hear about it. Next day Mrs. Whitney was driven to the railroad station and went to Boston. Mrs. Kirkpatrick kept her secret up to the time of the first search for Mrs. Whitney's body four years ago.

Detectives today took up the search for Oscar Pratt, who at the time of Mrs. Whitney's disappearance delivered milk in her neighborhood. He was quoted as saying he had seen her and her husband in a carryall near their home that morning. He has since left town.

Nothing but rocks and debris were found in the two wells searched yesterday and today for the woman's body.

A large portrait of Lieutenant Edward Hooper Gardiner of Boston, who was killed in action in France, has been presented to the Boston Community Service Army and Navy Club, No. 10 Park square, by his aunt, Miss Eugenia Gardiner.

WEDDED

MRS. GEORGE S. CLARKSON

(See Imelda Hagan).

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Clarkson (Imelda Hagan) are on their honeymoon today, following their marriage in St. William's Church, Roxbury, on Wednesday. The bride is the eldest daughter of City Councillor Henry A. Hagan of No. 18 Victoria street, Dorchester.

A nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Timothy P. Mahoney. Mr. Clarkson's former home was at No. 156 Ruthven street, Roxbury. On their return from the wedding trip the couple will reside in Arlington.

'SHIPBUILDERS GOT RAW DEAL'

Gillen Reveals Further Sensational Losses by Government Program

By International News Service.

New York, Nov. 18.—Thirteen hundred government built ships are today worth less than one-half of what the United States government spent to build them. It cost the government $3,800,000,000 to produce these vessels, and their value is today $1,800,000,000, "or less."

This revelation was made today by Martin J. Gillen, former Shipping Board official, when he resumed his testimony before the Congressional Investigating Committee here today.

Gillen, who yesterday shed a flood of testimony concerning waste, corruption and inefficiency, today gave fresh sensational details. He told of the "cost plus" system of shipbuilding contracts involving immense "padding" of costs, and revealed glaring flaws in the oil tanker program.

U. S. SHOULD LIQUIDATE.

"Until liquidation of the Shipping Board's war effort is completed, a new balance sheet struck, and new principles established the government built merchant marine will be hopelessly handicapped," said the witness.

Builders of wooden ships got a "raw deal" from the government, Gillen asserted on the stand.

"The government," he said, "induced contractors to put their money into plants for building wooden ships and then called off the program without providing for amortization of these special plants which were useless after such work was stopped.

"The wooden ship builders were left high and dry with their loss. Amortization was allowed all other special manufacturers whose production depended solely upon war contracts.

2,000,000,000 LOST.

"I am not for waste, but when the government induces people to go in and do work for war purposes, it should absorb the losses consequent upon sudden terminataion of such work."

Gillen, who has already testified that corruption and inefficiency cost the country a clear $2,000,000,000 loss, repeated today his charges of a total lack of system in the various Shipping Board departments. "Everything was in chaos when Judge Payne became chairman," he said. He was a special assistant to Payne.

A "departmental scrap" between the War Department and the Shipping Board, the witness said resulted in great laxity in auditing and settling claims.

LYNN MAN'S BODY ON WAY FROM HONDURAS

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 18.—The body of Raymond T. Bowen, auditor for the United Fruit Company, who died November 10 at Tela, Spanish Honduras, was brought here today on the steamer Lake Wimico. Bowen's home is in Lynn. Mrs. Bowen was in Honduras with him and a baby was born to them the day of his death. She remained there.

LEADERS URGE RED CROSS AID

Governor Coolidge, Cardinal O'Connell and Other Notables Make Appeal

Determined that the fourth roll call of the American Red Cross, and the final appeal of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter for $200,000 to carry on its work among former service men and their needy families, shall not fail, prominent men, headed by Governor Coolidge and Cardinal O'Connell, have united in an open call upon the public to support the campaign.

Others in the list of those who are backing the drive to the limit are Mayor Peters, Bishop Lawrence, Rev. Dr. Paul Revere Frothingham, Rev. Michael J. Scanlan, Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

Major-General Leonard Wood, General Clarence R. Edwards and Rear Admiral R. C. Dunn are among the military and naval officers who realize the work that the organization is doing and have joined in the appeal for public support.

AID WORK IN PERIL.

Failure to raise the $200,000 asked by the Metropolitan chapter threatens unless $22,000 a day is contributed between now and the end of the campaign, which means that much of the humanitarian work which includes relief for the needy former service men and their families will have to be abandoned in Boston.

Fifty school children started out after school hours today on a house-to-house canvass of the Back Bay section, with "reminders" that the places they visit have not contributed to the fund.

A meeting has been called for this evening at the G. A. R. hall, at which Mrs. Ely and General William H. Oakes will speak and lantern slides showing the work of the Red Cross will be shown.

At the Charlestown Navy Yard tomorrow noon another meeting has been arranged.

MUST SPEED ENROLLING.

Up to last night reports had been received by post card from only twenty-four of the 113 chapters, for the first day of two of the roll call. The total announced was 36,106. Estimates based on these meager returns indicate an enrollment to date of approximately 150,000. More rapid progress than this will have to be made, however, if the present division membership of 920,000 is equalled by Thanksgiving Day.

The Boston Metropolitan Chapter reported 15,000 members early yesterday. Concord, N. H., had 2,206 members enrolled. Pawtucket and Central Falls, R. I., 1,130; Penobscot County Chapter, Bangor, Me., 2,141; Brockton Chapter, 5,177; Hampshire County, Northampton, 3,100; Knox County Chapter, Rockland, Me., 1,030; Fitchburgh Chapter, 1,786; Leominster Chapter, 400, Gardner Chapter, 776, Athol Chapter, 400; Dover, N. H. Chapter, 345.

FARMER WINS WILDCAT BOUNTY BY GOOD SHOT

The first wildcat to be shot in this vicinity for years fell to the prowess of R. D. Saunders, a farmer of Peabody, who received a $5 bounty from the Commonwealth. The wildcat stretched four and a half feet and weighed about 30 pounds. The pelt is being prepared for the Peabody Museum in Salem.

Fox Hides on Wagon and Eludes Dogs

NOTE—The following authentic version of the manner in which a fox outwitted his pursuer and made good his escape, was received from the American's correspondent at Baltic, Ct., a man of unquestioned veracity, church member and friend to dumb animals. It is unique, to say the least.

Baltic, Ct., Nov. 18.—A local fox hunter and his dog pursued a fox up Scotland way, driving him so hard and shrewdly that wily Reynard was forced to leap stone walls, brush fences and the Little River.

He was unable to shake off the dog, however, and the hunter was becoming convinced that his quarry would soon be run down, when Woodchurch Hill road was reached. Suddenly the dog stopped and began running in circles, plainly at fault. He was unable to find the scent again, and the hunter, baffled, started down the road toward home.

Eben Williams, a farmer, passed with a load of grain and offered the disgruntled huntsman a ride. It was refused. As Williams was nearing home he heard a rustling in the bags of grain, he turned just in time to see an aged, weary red fox leap to the ground and disappear into the undergrowth.

FIREMEN'S "WEST POINT" UNDER MURPHY TO OPEN WITH 300

FIRE HEAD KEEN ON EFFICIENCY

Commissioner Murphy Cites Officers' School As One Sign of New Order

"And how about lady firemen?"

Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy, at fire headquarters, had been outlining the progress of the Fire Department, in the last year and three-quarters, since he took the reins. He had spoken of hydraulics and three-inch hose; of 75 per cent. motorization of the department; of the school for officers, and vocational training for the men; of oxygen masks, and light gas masks, all vital features of Boston's splendid, efficient, new Fire Department. The vital question remained to the end—"How about, Mr. Commissioner—how about those lady firemen?"

Now Commissioner Murphy is at least one thing more besides a wide-awake fire commissioner. He's a born, an artful, a clever diplomat. Just listen to his reply. Here it is:

"ASK THE LADIES."

"Lady firemen?" he queried. "Why, what have I to do with those? Nothing, to be sure. The ladies are voting now, and they can vote themselves in or not, as they please. We men are in the lap of the gods—and the ladies—and, whenever they take the notion, the ladies can vote me out and put in a lovely, feminine commissioner, with beautiful, blond curls, in my place. It's not for me to say one way or the other. Just ask the ladies themselves."

Which was all spoken with old time Irish courtesy. In fact, the old time virtues of the old time Irish mother, and the old time, canny New England housewife, have all been carried into the fire department. "To wit"—as Mr. Murphy has before now said in his law briefs, last Winter, when half the fire forces of half the cities of New England, were laid up on account of the snow, Boston's never missed a fire.

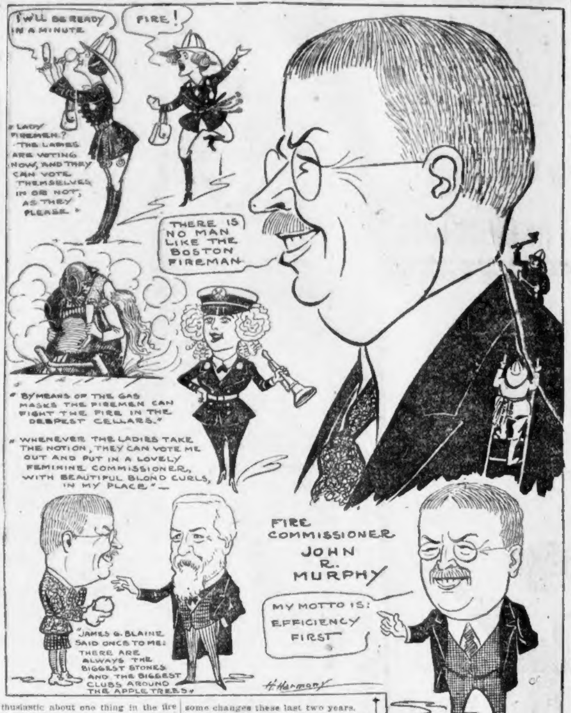
"Why?" you ask Commissioner Murphy.

OLD TIME FIRE PUNGS.

"Because," says he, "because I had an old fashioned mother. And she always used to tell her children to get ready for the Winter. So, when I came to the department, I asked "How about those old time fire pungs we used to have when I was a youngster in the fire department?"

"'Oh,' came the answer, 'they're pretty well all used up, now.' Well, I just took a look around, got them out, repaired them, and arranged for the loan of others, when the emergency came. So, last Winter, when the call sounded, and the motor fire wagons could not plough through the drifts, the little old fashioned horse pungs made their way through, and the day was saved."

Firemenettes? John R. Is Born Diplomat



I'LL BE READY IN A MINUTE
FIRE!
"LADY FIREMEN? THE LADIES ARE VOTING NOW, AND THEY CAN VOTE THEMSELVES IN OR NOT, AS THEY PLEASE."
THERE IS NO MAN LIKE THE BOSTON FIREMAN
"BY MEANS OF THE GAS MASKS THE FIREMEN CAN FIGHT THE FIRE IN THE DEEPEST CELLARS."
"WHENEVER THE LADIES TAKE THE NOTION, THEY CAN VOTE ME OUT AND PUT IN A LOVELY FEMININE COMMISSIONER, WITH BEAUTIFUL BLOND CURLS, IN MY PLACE."—
FIRE COMMISSIONER JOHN R. MURPHY
MY MOTTO IS: EFFICIENCY FIRST
"JAMES G. BLAINE SAID ONCE TO ME: THERE ARE ALWAYS THE BIGGEST STONES AND THE BIGGEST CLUBS AROUND THE APPLE TREES."
H. Harmony

Now, Fire Commissioner Murphy is enthusiastic about one thing in the fire department, more than any other, and that is, his men. "There's no man like the Boston fireman," he will tell you, "and that's why we are trying to make the Boston fire department the equal or the superior of—say—West Point, in its chance for advancement for our men. To do this we've made some changes these last two years.

"We have a vocational expert, loaned us by the School Committee, to study the studies given to the men in the Officers' School, and to show us how those studies may be more efficiently applied to practical life. We have, what we are very proud of, our Officers' School. Every private on the force is eligible. If the Boston Fire Department is nothing else, we plan to make it greatly democratic. We believe it to be so now.

"For, in spirit of Napoleon, we think that the humblest private fireman, now, may be carrying the trumpets of the chief in his knapsack. The private of today, in other words, is the officer of tomorrow. Therefore, we believe, train the man, give him book learning, in his specialty, to add to his practical training. And keep him busy.

"My clever little old fashioned mother used to repeat that old one, frequently, about Satan finding some mischief still for idle hands to do. We remember that adage with our fire department. A man who has plenty of time on his hands, needs to have something to do with his mind. Now the Boston fireman is so alert, mentally, and so ambitious, that 300 of an approximate membership of 1,300 have applied for training in the new officers' school, which begins another term the first of December."

IMPROVED OXYGEN MASKS.

Now ask Commissioner Murphy some of the innovations in his department. "Oxygen masks, for underground fires," he will tell you, for one of them. "Not that there weren't a few masks, before we came in. But we've had them enlarged and improved."

Then, if further questioned, the commissioner, who is a modest man, about his own deeds, will tell of a fire that happened just a few weeks ago. It was in a ship's hold. By means of the oxygen mask, which stands up in any kind of suffocating atmosphere, the fire was put out. Ten years ago the only way of saving a ship in this crisis was to sink her. The company, which owned this ship, and had it saved by Boston firemen, wrote Commissioner Murphy that a fire had broken out similarly in a ship which they had in another port, and the ship had been sunk. Which speaks for itself—and the department.

EFFICIENCY, THEN ECONOMY.

Ask the commissioner his motto, and he will tell you "Efficiency First." After that economy. And as for the financial affairs of his department. "We have a budget," says he, "and I know where I have saved a little from one department, which I can use for another. But nobody knows except me, and I'm not telling where the jam closet is hidden."

And, last of all, you people who are interested in the two platoon system, hear this:

The firemen have one day off in three; they want a two-platoon system; they always have two weeks in the Summer. But, the fire commissioner works every day in the week, and, in addition, has not had a vacation since February 17, 1919, when he took over the department. Once he got away for two days, and had to come back to settle some fire business. But he has made a resolve.

"And that is," says he, laughing, "to get my two weeks' vacation this year I have to wait till Christmas."

Crossing Elimination.

Officials of the Boston Elevated Railway Company and the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company agreed at the close of a hearing before the Department of Public Utilities to arrange for the elimination of a dangerous cross-over on Main street, west of Watertown sq.

4000 Barrels of Mentho-Laxene Cough Syrup Made in One Year

Think of it! Four thousand barrels of cough syrup. The barrels placed end to end would cover three miles of highway. Very little money was spent for advertising, showing plainly that the people get satisfactory results, as this wonderful cough medicine has only been on the market about 10 years.

Four thousand barrels in one year, means that 100,000 families used it; counting 4 persons to a family, means 400,000 persons got relief from coughs, colds, bronchitis, hoarseness and sore throat, by using Mentho-Laxene, as every bottle is guaranteed by The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio—and less than 50 people in ten years have ever asked for the money back. No stronger testimonial for a medicine could possibly be written.

A 2½ oz. bottle of Mentho-Laxene (concentrated) makes a full pint of cough and cold medicine.—Advertisement.

CUT OUT WASTE, SAYS HARDING

Urges 'Concord Among Americans, South, Central and North'

By International News Service.

New Orleans, Nov. 18.—"Neither our own nor the world's salvation is to be worked out through any patent nostrum." President-elect Warren G. Harding declared in a speech before the Chamber of Commerce here this afternoon, in which he discussed the industrial and economic situation before sailing for Panama.

"One hundred per cent. production, minimized waste, and "rational readjustment" offer the remedy for the industrial and economic ills of the United States, the President-elect said. He made an appeal for the "ideal relationship where men may labor with a soul in their tasks" and for a realization of "the dignity of productive labor."

"Concord among Americans, South, Central and North," was urged by the President-elect. "Somehow I feel that the Western Hemisphere is our special field of influence and trade," he said. "Our trade routes by the sea to the South ought to be as dependable as our railroad routes at home. Bind our friendship with the ties of trade and we shall make it indissoluble.

"Our great assurance at home lies in a virile, intelligent, resolute people, in a land unravaged by war, at enmity with no people, envying none, coveting nothing, seeking no territory, striving for no glories which do not become a righteous nation.

"This republic can not—will not—fail if each of us but does his part. With 100 per cent. production and minimized waste we may establish a sure footing. We must be more concerned with the substance in reward of activity than in its coin measurement. And our concern must be in a dependable prosperity which is righteously shared."

COOLIDGE GREETED BY FILIPINO SENATE

A resolution adopted by the Philippine Islands Senate on November 5 congratulating Governor Coolidge on his election as Vice-President has been received by the Governor today. It came to Governor Coolidge in the following letter from Secretary of War Baker:

"The following message is contained in a cablegram received from the Governor-General of the Philippine Islands on November 11:

"'On the fifth instant the Senate adopted the following resolution: Resolution sending a cordial message of congratulation to the Hon. Calvin Coolidge, Vice-President-elect of the United States. Resolved that a congratulatory message be and hereby is sent to the Vice-President-elect of the United States, the Hon. Calvin Coolidge, wishing him the most complete success in his administration."

BURGLAR-PROOF SAFE THWARTS THIEVES

Would-be robbers were balked by a burglar-proof safe in the carriage shop of Welch, Dwyer & Grady, Mystic avenue, East Somerville, early today. They got in by a rear window and carried the safe from the office to the shop floor. All the tools in the office were used in an effort to smash it or solve the combination. If they had opened it, they would have found $2 as a reward for their trouble. Police believe the job that of amateurs.

Granddaughter of Emerson Weds

Two clergymen officiated this afternoon at the wedding in historic Concord, Mass., of Miss Ellen Tucker Emerson, a granddaughter of Ralph Waldo Emerson, the poet and essayist, and Charles M. Davenport of No. 3 Acorn street, Boston.

The wedding, which was attended only by relatives and intimate friends of the bridal couple, was solemnized in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Waldo Emerson, on Lowell road, by the Rev. Herbert Gallaudet of Waterbury, Ct., assisted by the Rev. H. Grant Person of Newton. There were no attendants.

The bride, who is social worker, is now executive secretary of the public health committee of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the American Red Cross. She has served for a number of years on the Concord school committee. Mr. Davenport is a Boston attorney, with office at No. 53 State street. Mr. and Mrs. Davenport will make their home at No. 3 Acorn street, Boston.

To "Youth-ify" Gray Streaked Hair

Ask anybody to guess how old you are, and notice how their first appraising glance is directed at your hair.

To be answered, "You can't be more than thirty; I can tell by your hair," must give to any woman who is really forty or more a sense of pride and satisfaction.

But to become prematurely gray at 30 or 40, to look ten years older than you actually are—that is indeed a bitter experience. However, any woman can, with a bottle of Brownatone, restore to gray, faded and streaked hair all its maiden beauty and the identical color it had in girlhood, whether light golden, medium, dark brown or black. Brownatone is instant in results and absolutely harmless.

At all druggists: 50c and $1.50; two colors: "Light to Medium Brown" and "Dark Brown to Black."

American Thanked for Aid to Irish Cause

Editor Boston American:

At a meeting of Division 72, A. O. H., held last Sunday, it was voted unanimously, "That we again extend to the Boston American our thanks and appreciation for its fearless stand on behalf of the Irish Republic."

We thank God that there is such a newspaper of large circulation in Boston that cannot be influenced by British propaganda or British gold.

A newspaper that is not afraid to publish the full and true story of looting and raiding, burning and terrorizing and even murder of innocent men and women in Ireland by the Black and Tans and the English army of occupation.

We attribute the great vote in Boston against the League of Nations to the Boston American.

Therefore, we, as Irish Americans, are proud that the Irish cause is championed by such a paper.

When other publications that are now backed by British gold will be forgotten, the Boston American will be read and appreciated by all for its noble stand in behalf of small and oppressed nations.

CHURCH CENSUS TAKEN IN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

Mrs. Harriet Atkinson, recommended by the Massachusetts State Federation of Churches, has been secured to take the census.

When Food Doesn't Digest

Give the Stomach a Rational Rest by Proper Aid, Not by Harsh Starvation Methods. Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

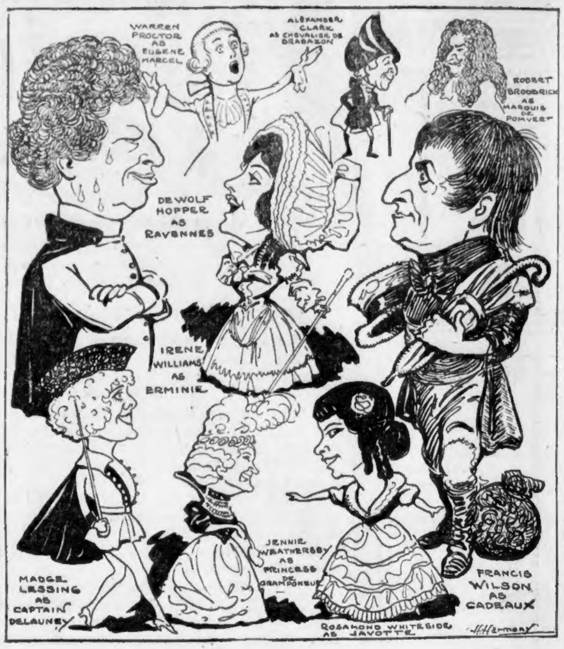
A sour stomach may indicate an acid condition that calls for an alkaline effect.

This you will get from one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after a meal. Sour risings, gassiness, a heavy bloated feeling and such distress due to indigestion or dyspepsia are usually only temporary. And yet they may lead to serious disorder. The regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals reflects to a high degree the intelligent selection of preventative measures.

One cannot always select or inspect the quality of food to be eaten nor its method or manner of preparation. But it is possible to avoid the acidity that is so often the result. And it is a far better plan to eat without worry over what may happen, than to starve for fear it will happen. Many physicians recommend these tablets for stomach distress due to indigestion or dyspepsia.

They are sold by all druggists everywhere at 60 cents a box.

Stunts of Old Friends in 'Erminie'



WARREN PROCTOR AS EUGENE MARCEL
ALEXANDER CLARK AS CHEVALIER DE BRABAZON
ROBERT BRODERICK AS MARQUIS DE PONVERT
DE WOLF HOPPER AS RAVENNES
IRENE WILLIAMS AS ERMINIE
JENNIE WEATHERSBY AS PRINCESS DE GRAMPONEUR
MADGE LESSING AS CAPTAIN DELAUNEY
FRANCIS WILSON AS CADEAUX
ROSAMOND WHITESIDE AS JAVOTTE
H. Harmony

Scenes from the revival of the popular old comic opera "Erminie" at the Globe Theatre. Francis Wilson takes his original part of "Caddy," while De Wolf Hopper appears as Ravennes. The music is as tuneful as ever, while the setting is a marvel of stage art.

DAI BUELL HEARD IN BRILLIANT PROGRAM

Dai Buell, a local pianist of charm and talent, gave her annual recital in Jordan Hall last night. Miss Buell is a skillful and ingenious programist and can usually be depended upon to get out of the ruck of recitals. Last night her specialty was a set of paraphrases by Borodin, Rimsky-Korsakoff and Liadow, in which she had the assistance of Narcissa Peace Varney, a tiny Newton girl, who held up her end against the professional pianist bravely and proudly. Miss Buell's program, aside from this number, was well calculated to display her considerable gifts.

NEW YORK HARD COAL MEN TO CUT PROFITS

New York, Nov. 18.—Local hard coal wholesalers are expected to adopt pledges restricting resale of anthracite to two wholesalers, including mine agents, and limiting gross profits to 10 per cent. of purchase price. Bituminous dealers here adopted these pledges, with steep price declines resulting by elimination of profiteering and price pyramiding.

14 Gallons of Whiskey Vanish From Store

Westfield, Nov. 18. — Stranger than some of the most imaginative dime novels is the mystery which surrounds the disappearance of some fourteen gallons of whiskey from the drug store of Frank C. Stehlik, of No. 73 Meadow street.

According to information given out by the police Stehlik reported that Monday night, or early Tuesday morning, the liquor, which was for medicinal purposes, vanished.

An investigation failed to reveal that a break was made at the store.

AMERICAN AIDS ROXBURY POOR

expects it to—into the home of a really needy family.

One of the finest indorsements that the Basket Fund has received thus far came from the boys of the Working Boys' Home in Newton Highlands, who contributed $5 which they had saved by depriving themselves of little luxuries. Brother Fabian, C. F. X., the superintendent, wrote the following letter for the boys:

"Possibly few persons realize the magnanimity of your cause more than the boys of the Working Boys' Home, most of whom at the dawn of their existence lost a loving mother or an equally fond father, and who must battle along the path of life with apparently no one to commend a deed nobly done.

"The Boston American Basket Fund surely appeals to them, and the enclosed $5, representing their savings from candy and so forth, is their volunteer contribution. Others more blessed will give greater amounts to this very worthy movement, but few will give with better hearts. We wish the Boston American Basket Fund every possible success."

The expression of good will contained in Brother Fabian's letter is of even greater value to the Basket Fund than the contribution of money. It makes the Basket Fund workers feel that their efforts are being appreciated.

URGES PROSPEROUS TO GIVE.

Mrs. Jessie Lufkin, of Gloucester, sent $2 and said in her letter: "May it, with others, help to lighten some heavy hearts on that day of days."

"Shorty" of North Cambridge, suggested a good idea in a letter enclosing $1 for the Basket Fund. He suggested that every man who had been hungry at some time in their life send a similar amount of money for the needy kiddies at Christmas. He wrote:

"Thousands of men can look back to some time in their past when they knew what it was to be hungry. If each of these men, now that they are prosperous, would give one dollar, your fund would surely go 'over the top.' I know from experience that a dollar invested in the help of other unfortunates always returns very good interest."

"J. J. S." of Swampscott sent a check for $1 in the name of his own two children. He wrote: "I wish it were one thousand times as much. However, if everyone does a little I feel sure no poor children or adults will be without a little to brighten their Christmas season. You deserve a great deal of credit for putting in so much time and energy, not to mention the substantial amount you always give as your share. With best wishes, I am——"

Nellie R. Murphy of Brookline sent $5 and wrote: "I wish that I could give more, as your fund does such a lot of good. Wishing you success, I am."

G. A. R. MEN HELP OUT.

A note from Somerville, containing $2, stated that it was "for some hungry kiddie." It was signed "From Buddie and Grandpa." A postscript added: "Buddie is two months old."

Post No. 62, G. A. R., sent $10, being the first one of this organization to do so. Many of the members of this organization have known from experience what hunger is. They learned of it while fighting that this nation might live.

A Christmas "lollypop party" in aid of the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund will be held December 21 in Sewall Hall, No. 177 Huntington avenue, Back Bay, by the members of the School for Stage Children of New England. One of the special features will be a lollypop dance by a group of children.

This luscious confection will be distributed during the favor dance to all present. Among those who will participate in the entertainment are: "Baby" Josephine Leonard of Taft street, Dorchester, Robina Murray of Parkway, Norwood, Frances MacDonald, Florence McNally, Marie Creed Murphy, Elizabeth Goodwin, Ethel Ben, Catherine Mahoney, Dorothy Richardson, Alice Rohde, Laura Gault, Alice Wood, Mabel and Lillian Neilson, Thelma Judd, Edith Gallagher, Gertrude Seymour, Ruth Hart, Gerald Novak, James Leonard, Hulda Niles, Marion Davies, Dorothy Smith, Edward Chambers, Eva Robichaud, Dorothy Godbout, Ruth Casey, Natalie Copeland and Irene Mooney.

Fifteen members of the "Chatterbox Club," an organization of Greater Boston young women, are to assist the Basket Fund next month, following their annual benefit dance in Paul Revere Hall. This dance is scheduled for December 1, and dancing will continue from 9 to 1 o'clock.

The committee in charge consists of Alma Locatelli, chairman; "Phil" Piscopo, Lillian Piotti, Mildred Bacigalupo and Lydia Levis. The proceeds of this dancing party will be devoted to charity.

Party to Aid Basket Fund

Little Josephine Leonard of Dorchester, who will perform at a party in Sewall Hall for the benefit of the Christmas Basket Fund. Miss Robina Murray of Norwood (insert) will also take an active part in the event, scheduled for December 21.

Although organized only a year, the members of this organisation have done a great deal to alleviate suffering throughout Greater Boston, and at the last meeting voted to assist the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund again this year. The girls were of material assistance last year, and enjoyed the work immensely.

POOR FAMILY AIDED.

As the result of the story printed in the Boston American telling of the appalling condition of affairs in a Roxbury home where eight persons slept upon two beds and there was nothing to eat but Indian meal, additional assistance has been given. A Dorchester woman gave a folding army cot to the family in order that the father, who has been suffering from tuberculosis, will not be compelled to sleep on the floor as he had been doing. She also sent him an overcoat and sweater.

A Medford woman gave shoes, underwear and outer clothing for members of the family. A Forest Hills man arranged for the family to get a bed spring and mattress, clothing and shoes. As the family was destitute of bedclothing a Roxbury woman arranged for them to get some.

A crippled woman from Roxbury sent the following plea for a Christmas dinner:

"I am a cripple and have not walked for three years. I can just get around my room. Would you please send me a basket? I got one from you last year, and I have no means whatever of getting my living."

PLEAS FROM SOUTH BOSTON.

A South Boston woman asked for help as follows:

"I am a poor woman, and there are five of us. My husband don't feel very well and work is slack, and I owe many bills. I try to keep house the best I can, and I would be glad to get a basket if I could. I do need it and would be glad to have one. I hope you won't forget me. Please remember me this year."

Another appeal from a South Boston woman reads:

"I am an old lady, seventy-three years old, and I live all alone. I used to be a tailoress, but now I can't work much, as I had the grip, and it left me very weak. All I have is just what the city gives me, and I am asking you for a Christmas basket if you would please be so kind to a poor old lady. I would be glad to have some one call to see me. I hope you won't forget me this year."

A Jamaica Plain woman said:

"I have read of the American Basket Fund. We would be so pleased to receive a basket for Christmas. My husband left me with three children five months ago. He sends me money, but not enough to get along with. I am not able to go to work. I would be very thankful."

HUSBAND OUT OF WORK.

Another request from Charlestown reads:

"Will you kindly send me a basket for Christmas, as my husband is out of work for seven long weeks, and when he starts to work again it will take us four months to get squared up again. I do not expect to get any Thanksgiving dinner, as I have not got a nickel in my house at present. I have two small children, one four months and another three years. I am not able to work myself, as I spent seven long weeks in the Boston City Hospital.

"I won't have any money for my Thanksgiving dinner, and my store bill is high, and the grocer refused me last night. This is my first time writing for a basket, and I would not ask for it now but I know I won't be able to get any Christmas dinner. If you doubt my words, just send some one around any time and find out. Please do not forget me on Christmas, as I will feel lonesome."

Healthy Young Womanhood

THE tendency to constipation begins with girls as they approach maturity, and that is the very time the mother should watch that the important function of daily elimination is regular and normal.

Many thousands of mothers who have daughters will tell you they give only Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A teaspoonful is sufficient to relieve constipation and its commoner symptoms such as headache, bad breath, biliousness, loss of appetite and restless sleep.

Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics, and a sixty-cent bottle is enough for many months. Eight million bottles were bought at drug stores last year, the largest sale of the kind in the world.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been on the market thirty years and there must be genuine merit behind it to develop so large and steady a sale. Buy a bottle today and you will quickly see why it is so popular.

TRY IT FREE

Send me your name and address and I will send you a free trial bottle of my Syrup Pepsin. Address me Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 513 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Everybody now and then needs a laxative, and it is well to know the best. Write me today.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat, also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.

UNITARIANS PIN HOPES ON CITY

Goal of $3,000,000 Will Be Reached Only if Boston Parishes Do Their Part

The success of the Unitarian campaign for $3,000,000 now depends upon the churches of Boston, according to a statement from national headquarters, No. 7 Park square, following the receipt of word from the field from Ernest G. Adams, campaign chairman, who is now in Detroit.

Mr. Adams notified headquarters at the close of the day, which brought the grand total in the campaign to $1,050,361, that the larger cities outside of Boston—Buffalo, Rochester, St. Louis, Detroit and Cleveland—"are in good shape and fully expect to raise the quotas assigned them."

Carl Bonney of Worcester division, chairman for twenty-nine parishes in that county, reported to headquarters that his county had gone "over the top" with quotas aggregating more than $100,000. Other parishes reported "over the top" were the second parish Marlborough, $6,500, and Richmond, Va., $2,000.

Arlington Street Church is now accredited with $100,000 toward its quota of $300,000, the second largest quota in the country. King's Chapel has raised $50,000 and the First Church in Boston $25,000 out of quotas of $200,000.

A number of large gifts are expected from the metropolitan Boston district. So far few have been received, although headquarters to date has reported the following, which, with the exception of $2,000 from Miss Fanny Faulkner of Boston, $5,000 in memory of the late William H. Baldwin and $25,000 from Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, also of Boston, have come from other cities:

Jesse H. Metcalf of Providence, $50,000; Henry D. Sharp of Providence, $50,000; Mrs. Henry D. Sharp, $25,000; Arthur B. Emmons of Newport, R. I., $25,000; State Senator Morton D. Hull of Chicago, $10,000; and and Frederick A. Delano of Washington, D. C., $5,000.

TURKISH GIRL BREAKS LEG ON COLLEGE STEPS

Fatma Reshid, a Turkish girl student at Jackson College, is at the Somerville Hospital for treatment for an injury sustained yesterday when she slipped and fell on the wet steps of the Miner Building at the college. Both bones in the left leg, near the ankle, are broken as a result of the accident.

WEST BOYLSTON'S $4,000 COAL SUPPLY BURNS

Worcester, Nov. 18.—One hundred and sixty tons of coal, the entire supply for the town of West Boylston, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin, which swept the West Boylston Coal Company yard. Attempts will be made by the company to replenish the supply for the Winter trade. The loss is estimated at $4,000.

Suffered with Piles for Years

New 88 Years Old But Works At Trade of Blacksmith and Feels Younger Since Piles Are Gone.

The oldest active blacksmith in Michigan is still pounding his anvil in the town of Homer—thanks to my internal method for treating piles.

Mr. Jacob Lyon, Homer, Mich.

I wish that you could hear him tell of his many experiences with ointments, salves, dilators, etc., before he tried my method. Here is a letter just received from him:

Mr. E. R. Page, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir: I want you to know what your treatment has done for me. I had suffered with piles for many years and used suppositories and all kinds of treatments, but never got relief until I tried yours. Am now completely cured. Although I am 88 years old, and the oldest active blacksmith in Michigan, I feel years younger since the piles have left me. I will surely recommend it to all I know who suffer this way. You can use my letter any way you wish and I hope it will lead others to try this wonderful remedy.

Yours truly,
J. L. LYON.

There are thousands of afflicted people suffering with piles who have never yet tried the one sensible way of treating them.

Don't be cut. Don't waste money on foolish salves, ointments, dilators, etc., but send today for a Free Trial of my internal method for the healing of Piles.

No matter whether your case is of long standing or recent development—whether it is occasional or permanent—you should send for this free trial treatment.

No matter where you live—no matter what your age or occupation—if you are troubled with piles, my method will relieve you promptly.

This liberal offer of free treatment is too important for you to neglect a single day. Write now. Send no money. Simply mail the coupon—but do this now—TODAY.

Mrs. William O. Dunn, wife of Rear-Admiral Dunn, whose Thursday afternoon "at homes" began today at her Beacon street residence.

By SARA ORCUTT.

Miss Eleanor Emerson and Charles Milton Davenport were married today. Miss Emerson is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Waldo Emerson of Lowell road, Concord. The wedding took place at the Emerson home. Mr. Davenport is a well known lawyer and a member of the St. Botolph Club. After a short wedding trip they will make Boston their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Curtis and their daughter, Mrs. Harry Byng, sail for home on Saturday from London. The Curtises were among a group of North Shore people who sailed for Europe in August. Mrs. Byng went over in May.

GERMS FILMED BY EDUCATORS

Movies of Bacterial Action Made at Tech to Be Shown Tonight

Motion pictures of living bacteria and other organisms too small to see without a microscope have been made at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, marking another step forward in the making of "movies" and medical research.

Real, live germs and bacteria magnified thousands of times by powerful microscopes are shown. Special researches in the making of these pictures were made under the direction of Professor C. E. Turner of the department of biology and public health, co-operating with the instructors in photography in the department of physics at "eTch."

The films were made for the Society of Visual Education of Chicago. It is the aim of this organization to have motion pictures of geography, civics, health and history used in the schools.

This society has developed a motion picture projection machine, which makes it possible to stop the film and use the picture on the screen exactly as a lantern slide. It is this development which makes the use of motion pictures practical as a teaching devise, according to Professor Turner.

Some of the films will be shown to approximately 1,000 educators and public health officials in Greater Boston tonight in the Walker Memoiral building. Only persons with nivitation cards will be admitted on this occasion.

Professor Wallace W. Atwood of Clark University, who is supervsing the production of films on geography, will speak on the visual education movement. The meeting tonight is to be the opening gun in the society's campaign in this section to have motion pictures used in the schools.

"The use of the mption picture as a supplement to classroom work is increasing by leaps and bounds," said Professor Turner. "All over the country, educators are comng to realize that the impressions gained through the eye are more lasting than those gained through the ear. One often hears the remark, 'it went in one ear and out the other,' but one never hears the expression, 'it went into on eye and out the other.'"

SHOW BENEFITS OF UNIONISM

Women's Trade Union League Opens Campaign of Education

In an effort to "combat the growing suspicion against the labor movement," the Women's Trade Union League today launched a campaign of education which is to last two months.

The aims of the campaign are to "teach the ordinary citizen that the trade unionist is not an autocrat, to keep the Massachusetts children school until he is sixteen, and to make the working day for women in all trades not longer than eight hours."

Miss Mabel Gillespie, spokeswoman for the movement, denies that the campaign is in any sense one to raise money.

"We are simply trying to make the average man and woman understand what trade unions are doing; to make them sympathize with the labor movement.

"We are determined to counteract, while it is still possible to do so by constitutional means, the feeling of antagonism to our movement which is beginning to be manifested in the daily press.

"Left to itself this feeling will breed hatred in the workers and lead to disasterous results.

"We women of trade unions are trying to still the industrial unrest before it breaks all bounds. We believe that properly directed it is one of the best signs of the times instead of the worst."

Men Die of Loneliness in Gay New York

New York, Nov. 18.—Gay New York, the American metropolis, the centre of the dramatic world, is one of the loneliest places in the world, according to Dr. Charles H. Sears, superintendent of the Baptist City Mission Society.

"Every year men die of loneliness here," Dr. Sears said. "No foreign field offers a greater opportunity for missionary workers than Manhattan, both because of its vice and its loneliness."

Dr. Sears described New York as "a city where men die of loneliness among crowds; where there is starvation amid plenty; where a thousand people live on an acre of ground they never see."

FOREIGN TRADE BOARD PLAN FOR CONGRESS

Washington, Nov. 18.—Legislation providing for a huge national organization modeled somewhat after the War Finance Corporation, aimed to provide credits and promote foreign trade, will be urged upon the incoming Congress, it was learned today.

Advocates of the plan declare that Senator Harding is already convinced of the necessity for such an organization, and is preparing to advance the plan in every possible way.

GERMANY WEARY OF OCCUPATION

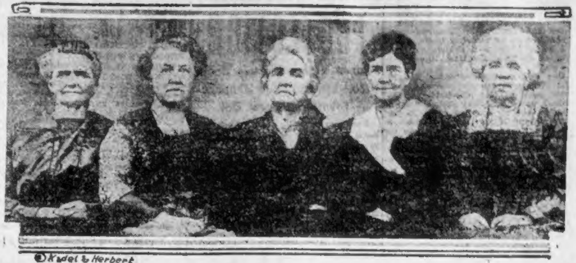
Foreign Minister Says Troops Retard Reparation Payment, One Tenth, Enough

Berlin, Nov. 18.—"Germany cannot think of meeting her reparation obligations until the question of occupation by foreign troops is regulated with economical sense and reason," said Foreign Minister Simons in a speech at Cologne.

Simons declared that the French have 100,000 men in Germany, Belgium 30,000, Great Britain 13,000 and America 12,000, a total of 145,000 occupation troops which are a burden upon the German people. This, he asserted, tends to retard, and not further Germany's ability to pay reparation.

In view of the present disarmed and defenceless condition of Germany, he said, one-tenth of the number would be sufficient to protect all allied interests.

Women to Run Entire City in Oregon



©Kadel & Herbert.

Here is the woman Mayor and whole city government of Yoncalla, Ore. Recently they were elected to every city office in the power of the people, and the politicians were given a jolt. Mayor Mrs. Mary Burt says: "At the worst we can't do much worse than the men have done." Photo shows, left to right, Mrs. Bernice Wilson, Mrs. Jennie S. Lasswell, Mrs. Mary Burt, Mayor; Mrs. Nettie Hannan and Mrs. Edith Thompson.

Boston gentlemen who have been wishing to goodness for a chance to turn the City Government over to the girls—bless them!—and have politics receive a thorough housecleaning, sighed unhappily today and said they could find little that is cheering in the news from Yoncalla, Ore.

Reports that the "city" of Yoncalla had "gone feminine" in the recent election, the Mayor and all four of the other city officials being of that persuasion, came to hand several days ago.

Today come the "details."

Yoncalla has a population of 699. The "city" is 140 miles south of Portland and about 40 from the Pacific. The principal industry is fruit growing. Citizens boast of a Southern Pacific Railroad station, with telegraph and express office.

The Mayor-elect is Mrs. Mary Burt. "We have made no definite plans for promoting the welfare of the city," Her Honor says, "but it is our intention to give Yoncalla an efficient administration. At the worst we cannot do much worse than the men have done." Mrs. Burt is a native Oregonian, college woman and stalwart Republican. The commissioners elected with her are Mrs. Bernice Wilson, Mrs. Jennie S. Lasswell, Mrs. Nettie Hannan and Mrs. Edith Thompson. Either Yoncalla's younger set does not go in for politics or they were outnumbered or counted out by the matrons.

Some larger city than Yoncalla, Ore., will have to be captured by the women before Martin Lomasney sells the Hendricks Club furniture and opens a millinery shop.

DISABLED VETS TO BE ASSISTED BY LEGION

Assistance to disabled war veterans in obtaining their compensation and war risk claims from the government will be given by the State officers of the American Legion, according to plans made at a meeting of the officers. A visiting committee will make daily and weekly visits to the hospitals, and will furnish entertainments, fruit, candy and tobacco.

While the father refused to make a statement explaining the son's absence and his sudden reappearance under mysterious circumstances, the family indicated that young Frankel would not return to his studies unless he wished, but probably would start a business career under his father's guidance.

Catarrh Of The Stomach Is Dangerous

"Thousands Have It and Don't Know It," Says Physician. Frequently Mistaken for Indigestion—How to Recognize and Treat.

"Thousands of people suffer more or less constantly from furred, coated tongue, bad breath, sour burning stomach, frequent vomiting, rumbling in stomach, bitter eructations, gas, wind and stomach acidity and call it indigestion when in reality their trouble is due to gastric catarrh of the stomach," writes a New York physician.

Catarrh of the stomach is dangerous because the mucous membrane lining of the stomach is thickened and a coating of phlegm covers the surface so that the digestive fluids cannot mix with the foods and digest them. This condition soon breeds deadly disease in the fermented, unassimilated food. The blood is polluted and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastric ulcers are apt to form and frequently an ulcer is the first sign of a deadly cancer.

In catarrh of the stomach a good and safe treatment is to take before meals a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in half a glass of hot water as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water washes the mucous from the stomach walls and draws the blood to the stomach while the bisurated magnesia is an excellent solvent for mucus and increases the efficiency of the hot water treatment. Moreover the Bisurated Magnesia will serve as a powerful but harmless antacid which will neutralize any excess hydrochloric acid that may be in your stomach and sweeten its food contents. Easy, natural digestion without distress of any kind should soon follow. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, pleasant and easy to take and can be obtained from any local druggist. Don't confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of magnesia, milk, citrates, etc., but get it in the pure bisurated form (powder or tablets), especially prepared for this purpose.

A Solid Train Load of Ice from Somerville to Lynn

THINK of the amount of ice you use in your ice box to protect your daily supply of milk, cream, etc.,—then try and make a mental picture of the amount of ice required by H. P. Hood & Sons to guard the milk supply of the communities it serves.

You can get in this way but a small idea of only one of the problems of the milk distributor.

For, in the year 1919, the amount of ice used by H. P. Hood & Sons would require a solid freight train reaching from Somerville to Lynn.

To Farmers for Milk, Cream, etc.
Nearly $8,000,000

W. H. VANDERBILT IN ROMANCE

Heir to Many Millions Surrenders to Charms of Winsome Western Maid, Friends Hear

New York, Nov. 18. — "Is" William Vanderbilt engaged?

That, according to Cholly Knickerbocker, society editor of the American, is the question which has caused much chatter these past few days among the elegantes who sip tea and dance every afternoon at the Ritz-Carlton, the Plaza, etc.

ANNOUNCEMENT SOON.

The Ritzonians and the Plazaites insist a formal announcement of "Willie's" betrothal to a young miss from the "Wild and Wooly" West will be forthcoming in the very near future. Truth to tell, the New York-Newport colony, as far back as last Summer, heard reports to the effect that Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's oldest son was not heart and fancy free.

William H. Vanderbilt is at present in the West, and several of his friends have told that he is planning to pass the Winter there.

A GOOD "CATCH."

He is, without a doubt, one of the greatest matrimonial "catches" in American society, and more than one ambitious mama with marriagable daughters will be extremely peeved to learn that a young miss from west of the Mississippi river has captured the Vanderbilt heir.

Young Vanderbilt's mother, Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons—formerly Fitzsimmons—is now in Pekin, where her husband is naval attache.

6 MILLION WELLESLEY FUND IS DISCUSSED

The financial needs and assets of Wellesley College were discussed today at the second meeting of a three-day conference held by 130 graduates from all over the country. A plan for a fund raising campaign to collect $6,780,000 also was discussed. It is planned to complete the campaign in time for the semi-centennial of the college in 1925. It is hoped to have $2,700,000 in time for the college commencement of 1921.

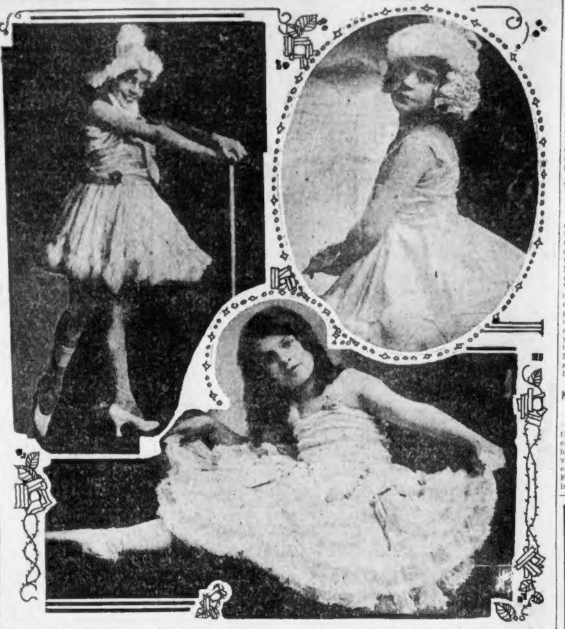
CHARGE WORCESTER MAN WITH THREATENING GIRL

Worcestr, Nov. 18.—On the charge that he had made threats against the life of his sweetheart, Emma Lambert, twenty-two years old, of 68 Salem street, and that he had shown a loaded revolver to her sister when making these threats, George H. Bailey of 139 Highland street has been arrested and is now under examination at the Worcester State Hospital.

Will Aid the Children's Hospital Drive



Three of the little dancers who will appear in the entertainment in aid of the Children's Hospital fund. Below is seen Vivian Parker. At the upper left is Irving Lamont, who, despite his sex, makes a very alluring baby vamp. The third is Gladys Langly, who will execute an aeroplane dance.

Of the three young ladies shown in dancing costumes on this page the most dashing—the most vampish, so to speak—isn't a young lady at all. "She" is Master Irving Lamont, a Boston boy, whose fame as a Julian Eltinge in miniature has made even New York sit up and take notice.

Irving is one of sixty Boston children who will sing and dance with all the skill and grace of little professionals next Monday afternoon in Jordan Hall, at the Conservatory of Music in Huntington avenue, for the benefit of the Children's Hospital $2,500,000 fund. The very cream of Boston's young performers has been brought together for this one performance, and those who should know say that everybody who buys a ticket for the extremely modest price of fifty cents will get his money back ten times over.

MISS HORSLIN'S IDEA.

The matinee was Doris Horslin's idea.

When Doris was three, some of the most eminent specialists in these parts shook their heads over her "case," and said there was "no hope." The little girl had tuberculosis of the ankle. The specialists said she never would be able to walk.

"But," said one of the wise men, "you might try the Children's Hospital. They are doing some fine work out there."

So, for three years, Miss Doris was carried regularly to the Children's Hospital. She wore splints and a block. First she went every day, and finally every second day. Dr. Brackett, now a general and chief of the army's orthopedic surgeons, attended her.

At the age of six the little lady who never would be able to walk was a dancing member of the Dorothea Dix School for Stage Children. Until she was fifteen, she was popular and prominent in children's theatricals. She played Little Lord Fauntleroy, doubled in "The Prince and the Pauper," and was frequently seen in "Pinafore." Managers wanted to make a professional of her, but her mother had other plans.

TAUGHT DANCING.

Until she was twenty, Miss Doris was the president and the teaching staff of a very popular dancing school for little people. Then, about a year ago, she became Mrs. Hackett of No. 922 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge. The dancing is no more. Let the rest of the story be told in the young woman's own words:

"I read a few weeks ago of that little boy who started the Children's Hospital Fund with the few cents given to him by his father, and I asked myself: 'Well, Doris Horslin Hackett, what are YOU going to do? How grateful are YOU?'

"All that I could think of was a gala matinee by the little performers I know. Many of them are my former pupils. More—and some of them the very sweetest and cleverest—come from the classes of Lilla Viles Wyman and Jennie M. Trainor, each of whom, I am happy to say, has co-operated with me in a wholehearted manner.

"I feel sure that if it were not for the Children's Hospital I should still be wearing irons and I know there are thousands of cases in New England like my own."

One well-known Bostonian bought fifty tickets to the matinee and sent them back to Mrs. Hackett. These tickets, so long as they last, she says, may be had by crippled children for the asking. If you know of such a child, write in his or her name to Mrs. Hackett at her Cambridge address. Monday afternoon's performance in Jordan Hall will begin promptly at 2:15 o'clock.

WORCESTER MILLS TO MAKE A REDUCTION

Worcester, Nov. 18.—Uncertain conditions in the textile industry are hitting Worcester wollen manufacturers hard. A 15 per cent. reduction in wages will be effective in the Queensbury mills commencing Monday. Only one third of the regular force is now working. The Worcester Woolen Company resumed operations today after being shut down for a week. The Whittall Carpet mills in South Worcester will reopen Monday after being closed for a week. A forty eight hour week will be effective. Ten per cent. of the employes of the George E. Duffy Manufacturing Company, 1511 Main street have been laid off and a forty hour week is now in effect.

URGE MATERNITY PROTECTION

Women Voters Discuss Social Remedies and Laud Shepard-Towner Mothers' Bill

The entrenched male legislator came in for his share of feminine amusement, and feminine dissection, at the New England Regional Conference of Women Voters, when Mrs. Maud Wood Park explained man's age long idea of economy.

"When a man wishes to economize," said she, "he begins to think how women may do it. This is true, even when the men wish to economize in Congress, with the national budget. Now we women are standing for one bill, among others, and that is the Shepard-Towner Bill for maternity protection. We need several hundreds of thousands for State education, in connection with this bill.

SAVE THE MOTHERS.

"We need also two millions to help save the lives of over 30,000 women who die each month from adverse conditions at the maternity period. There are only two countries in the civilized world where the death rate of mothers exceeds ours. Yet there are legislators who do not wish to give us any money for this bill. We must muster our forces, our influence and our intercession, to have this bill passed in the next short session, that many lives of mothers and children may be saved."

Other bills, for which the National League is working, were defined at the conference. They are the Smith-Towner bill for education; the Nolan minimum wage bill for government workers; a bill that has to do with inspection of stockyards, from the food supply and demand department, and a bill providing separate citizenship for married women.

PROGRESS TOPICS.

Speakers at today's session included Mrs. Frederick P. Bagley, on American Citizenship; Women in Industry, by Miss Mary McDowell, and Child Welfare, by Mrs. Larue Brown.

Dr. Valeria H. Parker of Hartford, Ct., discussed Social Hygiene. Uniform Laws was the subject of Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, Food Supply and Demand, that of Mrs. Edward Costigan, and Research, by Mrs. Mary Sumner Boyd.

A dinner at the Copley-Plaza this evening will complete the day's program.

SEASONABLE BEAUTY AID

We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with canthrox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil, leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of canthrox, which you can get from any good druggist's, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. —Advertisement.

Too Fat?

Easy, Home Self Treatment

OVERSTOUTNESS, in many cases, weakens and affects vital organs of the body, injures the health, shortens life, causes heart collapse and other ailments (often seriously dangerous); spoils a person's attractiveness and efficiency to do things.

Don't allow your health to be ruined through a burden of unhealthy fat.

Spend some time daily in the open air; breathe deeply, and get from any druggist a box of Korein tabules (pronounced koreen) and follow Korein system simple directions that come with the box.

Weigh and measure yourself every week. Continue reducing steadily until you are down to normal. Korein system is absolutely harmless, is pleasant, and even a few days' treatment has often shown a noticeable reduction.

Korein system has succeeded when other remedies, etc., have failed. It is the delight of those who wish to improve their figure and to acquire a younger, active appearance. Eat all you need; no strenuous exercising. Guarantee that you reduce 10 to 60 pounds, (whatever you need to) or your money back. Buy Korein tabules in a box, at any busy pharmacy; or write for free brochure, with many testimonials, to Korein Co., NB-68, Station X, New York

FAMINE STALKS THROUGH VIENNA

Deaths by Starving Daily Occurrence; American Aid Only Hope

By International News Service.

London, Nov 18.—Dr Margules, one of the world's leading meteorologists, is dead in Vienna. He starved to death.

Extraordinary as it may seem, there is nothing unusual in this brief news item. Death from starvation is a daily occurrence in Vienna, once the gayest, most light-hearted capital of Central Europe. It is "routine news" for the newspapers of that city. The columns that used to be filled with advertisements of pastry and dainties which made Vienna the Mecca of gourmands are black with death notices these days, and ninety out of every hundred deaths are due to undernourishment or outright starvation.

"Austria-Hungry" is what the shadow of the proud Hapsburg empire is called in the Vienna newspapers. Vienna itself, where nearly one-third of Austria's population is concentrated, has come to be known as the City of Death. Men, women and children die like flies there and always it is the same story—starvation.

Dr Margules, whose case is merely an illustration, was sixty-five years old. He had nothing to support him except a pension which at the present exchange amounted to about $3 a month. There are thousands like him in Vienna, men and women once wealthy and of eminent ranking in the world of science, art, literature, now living in attics or cellars.

And the children of Austria! Theirs is a ghastly story by itself.

"There are 4,000 families without a home in Vienna," cables Jacob Reumann, the city's Mayor. "These families are respectable people whom we have to house in make-shift shanties, cellars and old rail cars."

In this plight the leaders of the stricken republic see but one ray of hope. That of American help.

"At the beginning of 1919 America saved us from starvation," says a joint statement by Dr Karl Renner, the retiring chancellor, and Dr Mayer, his successor.

"Only because America gave us a credit of $48,000,000 were we able to give our people at last some food. Again in 1920 we would have been without bread but for the 200,000 tons of flour America sent us."

EX-SENATOR LEWIS SEES DIRE TIMES FOR G. O. P.

New York, Nov 18.—A rough time ahead for the incoming Republican administration was seen here today by Ex-Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois.

"The nation," he said, "will be fortunate if we avoid war with Japan and China as allies over necessary policy of protecting the United States against non-assimilable immigrants.

"The United States will soon have to face a commercial opposition from England and Germany in a new alliance for trade monopoly in Eastern Asia and Russian Europe. France for preservation will be driven into a commercial alliance with Italy and Russia. The United States will be left separate and alone."

POLICE SEARCH LYNN FOR BOSTON ROBBERS

Thirty-five policemen are combing Lynn today in an effort to apprehend Patsy Alberty and Anthony Cacciole, residents of Blossom street, that city, who are believed to have returned to Lynn after robbing the store of Morris Schwartz, Summer street, of several thousand dollars' worth of shoes and leather a week ago. Cacciole, it is claimed by the local police, is wanted by the Boston authorities for an attempt to kill his father on Staniford street, recently.

Called Bond Bread—Why?

Called Bond Bread—Why?
Bond Bread
Sugar—refined granulated sugar the same as you use with coffee
Salt—the purest that money can buy
Milk—pure enough for the tiniest baby
Lard—pure as an Easter lily
Flour—as good as the best you have ever used
Yeast—fresh pure compressed yeast same as you used to use—
Bond Bread

THE name "Bond" in Bond Bread comes from the fact that every wrapper bears a Bond which guarantees the purity of the "home" ingredients. These ingredients are listed on each loaf.

To the average woman, Bond means delicious bread, as pure and wholesome as home-made.

It means real "home-made" flavor, a flavor that can only come from real "home" ingredients. It means no substitutes.

To the housewives who showed us how to make Bond Bread, the Bond has a further meaning—

It proves to them that Bond Bread will never fall below the "home-made" standard which they set. And the Bond is evidence of the great service rendered you when they designed Bond Bread.

To mothers, Bond means the kind of bread which helps to fill their hearts' desire through the radiant health and chubby cheeks of their children.

To us—the Bond means added expense, for each pure ingredient costs more than "ordinary" kinds.

It means ceaseless effort to obtain these pure materials in spite of scarcity. It means eternal vigilance and constant effort to maintain our scientific control of temperature, humidity, proportions—every step of the special Bond Bread process which copies home-made bread so perfectly.

But, the Bond also means to us the happy knowledge that today more people use Bond Bread than any other kind of bread in the world, proving the truth of our belief that the American woman wants to know the purity of ingredients in her bread as guaranteed to her by our ironclad Bond.

Bond Bread

(So-named because purity guaranteed by our Bond and made as housewives showed us)

QUICK RELIEF FROM SORE THROAT

Formamint Tablets afford protection against infection

PEOPLE nowadays recognize that a sore throat is a danger spot, as the inflamed tissues form an ideal soil for germs to multiply.

With gargles it is impossible to keep a sore throat under anything like effective treatment. With Formamint, whether you are at work, or in crowded car, store, theatre or church, you can dissolve, now and then, one of these pleasant tasting, powerfully antiseptic tablets in your mouth.

An effective antiseptic is released and, carried by the saliva, continuously bathes the tissues, checks germ growth and soothes the throat, possibly preventing laryngitis, tonsilitis, "flu." Relieves hoarseness. Helpful for singers, actors, smokers, speakers, lecturers, etc. Children like them. 60c at all druggists.

$50,000 STOLEN FROM BANK BOXES IN STORM

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 18.—Cracksmen last night during a heavy storm robbed the Landisville National Bank safety deposit boxes of cash, jewelry and unregistered bonds amounting to over $50,000. The bank was without a watchman. None of the bank's money was taken. The robbers evidently worked without fear of discovery, as stones were removed from rings and the settings discarded. [illegible] were registered bonds.

BURBANK MAKES NEW FREAKS

Ever-Bearing Strawberry and Tomato Pepper Among "Wizard's" Latest Developments

By Universal Service.

Santa Rosa, Cal., Nov. 18.—Despite the fact that he has [illegible] three years to the good on [illegible] allotment of three score and ten, Luther Burbank, with the dawn of the new year will announce the creation of a number of new fruits, cereals, flowers and plants.

Notable among the latest creations are a tomato-pepper, which is said to be very sweet and a delicious addition to the vegetable kingdom.

Another major offering will be an ever bearing strawberry plant, which will bear fruit throughout the entire Summer. In the way of cereals Burbank has created a new [illegible] barley which is said to be a big producer and specially [illegible] and a giant rye.

To the flower kingdom Burbank offers some new and [illegible] varieties. The latter include a new giant dahlia and some new varieties of gladiola. Burbank has also created a new ornamental pepper tree. Also he has a new walnut to add to his famous collection of walnuts already given to the world.

Several new species of bamboo trees are also to be introduced on January 1. Poultrymen will be specially interested in the announcement that Burbank has perfected a new curly leaf kale.

"Yes, I am still keeping busy, and in fact the working hours of the day do not give me enough time to do all I would like," said Mr. Burbank.

LIQUOR WORTH $12,000 SEIZED; TWO ARRESTED

Springfield, Nov. 18.—Harry Peters and Leonard Cistare, both of Bristol, Ct., were arrested here charged with illegal transportation of liquor and illegal possession of $12,000 worth of whiskey, found in an automobile truck. Appearing before United States Commissioner John Rice, the men pleaded not guilty and were held in $1,000 bail each for hearing.

The market began with irregular price movements [illegible] minutes the trend was [illegible]. [illegible] advance brought [illegible] than could be [illegible] a number of issues were soon selling below the opening figure. Trading was of less volume than on Wednesday and the early price range was rather narrow. Rails led the forward movement and also the reaction. Steels followed the carriers. Equipments were irregular and high-priced ones were [illegible] for awhile, while coppers were weak from the outset. There was a firm tone to sugars. Shipping shares had no support. At the end of thirty minutes losses were the rule. Initial gains ranged from fractions to six points. During the first hour there was considerable hesitancy on both sides as regards further commitments.

MORE YEAR LOWS

Stromberg declined six [illegible] first sale and to a low for the year. Other issues to sell at 1920 lows included Anaconda, Miami, Ray Consolidated, International Corporation, Endicott Johnson, International Paper, Marine preferred, Lackawanna Steel, White Oil and Royal Dutch. Southern Pacific was the strongest and most active rail, but lost most of its gain when prices began to ebb. Mexican Petroleum led the oils, Car & Foundry advanced the most and Baldwin was the most active among equipments and Republic was the foremost steel in the advance. Inspiration was the weakest copper. What strength the market possessed was attributed to covering of shorts. The disposition shown yesterday by some strong financial interests to [illegible] support caused a little hesitation on the part of bear raiders this morning. Nothing in overnight news was calculated to alter market sentiment, [illegible] is exceedingly bearish.

COPPERS STILL GOING DOWN

Boston Market Opens Irregular and Takes Downward Course; Curb Leaders Decline

Most active issues were up at the opening in Boston, but before the morning was over the situation was reversed. Prices here were reflective of the New York trend. The weakness of the local list was largely due to the decline of coppers. New lows for this or several years were reached by Allouez, Mohawk, Osceola, U. S. Smelting, New Cornelia, St. Mary's Land and Davis-Daly. United Shoe sold at its lowest since 1904. Miscellaneous issues to sell at 1920 lows included International Products and Waltham Watch. United Fruit declined a point and to below 200. American Sugar common opened at a decline of 2¼ and stocks to recede a point or more were International Products, Edison, St. Mary's Land [illegible] and New Haven. Waltham Watch receded 1½. United [illegible].

Among issues to decline fractionally were [illegible], Boston Elevated, Calumet & Arizona, Mohawk, Old Dominion, New Cornelia, Davis-Daly, New Cornelia, Bigheart, Orpheum, Ventura and Massachusetts Gas. Small gains were made by Boston & Maine, Copper Range, Island Creek, Carson Hill, National Leather, Eastern Manufacturing, Swift & Co., Swift International and Waldorf.

CURB LIST WEAKENED.

Trading on the curb was very quiet at the start, and the price movement was mixed at the start. As on other exchanges, the trend was toward a lower level. This market soon weakened. Leaders were Boston & Montana, Merrimac Development and Texana. Strong stocks at the start were Bagdad, Eureka, Manhattan, Merrimac Development and Mutual. Among weak ones were Boston & Montana, Ranier, Texana, Iron Cap, [illegible] and Denbigh.

At the end of an hour Merrimac [illegible] off 2 cents at 16 cents, Texana ½ cent at 26 cents, Arizona Tip Top, 2 cents at 9 cents; Denbigh 2 cents at 10 cents; Manhattan, 2 cents at 6 cents, Mutual [illegible] cents at 3[illegible] cents, Midway, 2 cents at 28 cents and Iron Cap 12 at $6. Bagdad was up 2 cents at 23 cents. Boston & Montana and Truro had recovered losses.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

One Hundred Investment Bargains in Railroad Bonds

In a circular prepared by one of the greatest bond authorities in this country, which we have just had printed, the bond situation is not only thoroughly covered, but there is a list of one hundred bargains in high grade railroad bonds yielding as high as

Ten Per Cent

Among this list are many unusual investment opportunities, and inasmuch as underlying factors are now favorable to rising bond prices, a selection of these bonds would unquestionably result in excellent market profits, in addition to an attractive income return.

The circular will be sent without obligation, together with a booklet describing a convenient method of purchasing the bonds.

INDUSTRIALS SUFFER MOST

Six Per Cent. Call Loan Rate Fails to Induce Buying of Issues

By BROADAN WALL.

New York, Nov. 18.—Yesterday's session in the stock market furnished another nerve-racking day for the owners of securities, especially the industrials. Quite a number of new low records were made as a result of liquidation which broke out in many directions.

The only show of strength appeared in the first hour when fractional gains were recorded. From then on offerings were heavy and at the expense of price. The lowest quotations were made about fifteen minutes before the close when prices showed net losses ranging from two to five points. In some specialties the declines were larger.

Near the close a rally started based on short covering, which carried the most active issues up from one to two points above the lowest. Coincident with this rally a rumor was circulated that a large account had been taken over privately.

CALL LOANS AT 8 PER CENT.

Much attention was paid to the statements made by Charles H. Sabin, president of the Guaranty Trust Company. Every commission and wire house sent messages to their out-of-town correspondents quoting Sabin as stating that liquidation had not proceeded far enough in some directions.

Call loans were renewed at 8 per cent, but by the late afternoon the rate had eased off to 6 per cent. The later rate, however, failed to induce buying of stocks.

Strength of Erie in the face of the general downward movement was again attributed to buying by important railroad interests identified with another company.

American International broke four points to a new bottom on rumors that the directors would cut or pass the dividend tomorrow. Chandler was in strong expectation of declaration of the regular dividend. United States Industrial Alcohol directors are scheduled to take action on the dividend today.

PORPHYRY COPPERS DROP.

Southern Pacific was urgently purchased during the first hour and advanced nearly one point. Buying was declared to be for the account of the same house which purchased heavily of the issue recently under par. The general weakness, however, had a sympathetic influence on the stock and it lost the gain with two points additional.

American Car & Foundry, considered one of the [illegible] houses and [illegible] floor traders.

The [illegible] by the Porphyry [illegible] for the [illegible] to three points in that [illegible]. The statements also gave added [illegible] expectations of further [illegible] dividend payments [illegible] holders in those companies.

'THE CHAMPION' BRIGHT FARCE

Grant Mitchell, in Role of Fighter, Delights Park Square Theatre Audiences

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Grant Mitchell, "The Tailor Made Man," is again in Boston, this time in a farce called "The Champion." It was written by Thomas Londen and A. E. Thomas and is presented at the Park Square Theatre by Sam H. Harris.

"The Champion" is not as smooth a piece of work as "The Tailor Made Man," but it will undoubtedly do Mitchell nearly as long, because it also contains those elements that make a play popular.

It is an English comedy for American appetites. Probably it wouldn't have a very long run in London, but Mitchell is not likely to take it there.

"THE CHAMPION" FUNNY.

"The Champion" starts out as comedy and promises well for half the evening. Then it turns a handspring and becomes farce and gets more and more preposterous as it goes on. But it never fails to be funny, and for that all else can be overlooked.

Mitchell has switched from a tailor's apprentice to a prize fighter. The prodigal son of an English middle-class family, he runs away from home to America and becomes the world's champion lightweight.

His puritanical family feel themselves disgraced when he returns home, but as soon as they discover that the British nobility considers prize-fighting a great and noble profession, they get in line, and the entire last act is a glorification of Mitchell the Scrapper.

HAS GOOD SUPPORT.

It looked for a time as though we would actually see a fight in the last act when our hero got into an argument with a British lord twice his size. If a vein of bitterness runs through this review it is because they went behind the scenes to pull off the bout. Verly likely the playwright didn't know that even women are allowed to witness fights in Boston nowadays.

The company supporting Mr. Mitchell is good on the whole, though it would be better if he had a few more English actors and actresses playing such English parts. When you consider that our stage is all cluttered up with English actors playing American roles, it's queer Sam Harris couldn't have found enough to go around in "The Champion."

ELLIOTT CLEVER ACTOR.

Next to Mitchell, who was the same amusing individual we all like, the best work was done by Arthur Elliott as the champion's father. He has a wonderful gift of making faces, funny ones, and his acting was high class.

Ann Andrews as the heroine had a stilted, artificial role, which prevented her from astonishing the world with her talent. And she couldn't help the fact that she is not inflicted with an English accent, though her role is very English. She is a very pretty girl and wears clothes to ravish a modiste.

Desiree Stempel, in her brief bit as a French governess, had a lot of snap and sang "Madelon" in a very fetching way. Lucy Beaumont, Frank Westerton and Tom Williams all did good work. So did Harold Cooper, Gordon Buxby, Gerald Hamer, Henry Warwick and Robert Ayrton.

What's in Chop Suey? Chicago Inquires

By Universal Service.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—The Chicago public may soon know exactly what goes into chop suey.

Alderman Max Adamowski, head of the council high cost of living committee, today demanded of Chinese proprietors of chop suey restaurants answers to the following questions:

What are the ingredients of chop suey?

What do they cost?

Where on earth do they come from?

After his conference with the orientals he did not tell what he had found out, but announced that $1.25 for mushroom chop suey is outrageous and that fifty cents for the plain suey is robbery.

OIL REPRISALS BY U.S. ADVISED

Standard Oil Head Says America Must Act to Conserve Petroleum Resources

Washington, Nov. 18.—The United States must accept the challenge and bar the citizens of foreign nations, particularly England, France, Italy and Japan, from participating in America's present oil resources, upon which they are dependent for their economic existence, unless they change their policy of excluding America from the new oil fields throughout the world, said W. C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, in an address here.

"The question is bigger than international boundaries," Teagle told the American Petroleum Institute, which is now in session to consider the oil situation which American producers are now facing throughout the world.

"The United States is now spending its petroleum wealth for the world's benefit. It is supplying seventy per cent. of the world production. The total world consumption for 1921 will call for close to 700,000,000 barrels. In the present year we shall produce 445,000,000 within our own borders.

"Many foreign governments are deliberately placing obstacles in the way of those who would like to assist in the development of new sources of supply. You are all familiar with the San Remo agreement, proposing a division of Mesopotamia and other Near East territory between the British and French, and the tripartite agreement, recently entered into by Great Britain, France and Italy, defining the spheres of influence in Turkey, which is susceptible of diplomatic inquiry as to its true meaning.

"One article in this agreement appears to nullify the principles of the open-door policy.

IS MARRIAGE A SUCCESS? WHAT READERS SAY

SHE STILL HAS FAITH.

Marriage Editor

It is a pleasure to read a letter such as was published in last [illegible] American from Mr. Lawley. It restores my shattered faith in mankind. I am so disgusted by the behavior of men, married and single, that I have almost reached the conclusion that they all are some sort of terrible creature. Men who are highly respected in the community, and whose wives never dream of suspecting them are paying the bills of other women for many years. Then again there are dozens of young men who have said they have admired me, and out of them all perhaps two were honorable gentlemen. They never think of such a thing as keeping their word and expect to be kissed if they spend a few cents on a girl. They have no regard for a girl who holds herself aloof [illegible] respect, no matter how good a pal or how good-looking she may be. A trusting maiden places some man upon the pedestal of her affection [illegible] honorable and invariably finds that her idol has feet of clay. If I found a man who did not [illegible] he loved me the first time he took me [illegible] driving, of course, and did not ever [illegible] I believe I should faint. Why [illegible] the two [illegible] says that he thinks girls are so sweet [illegible] and altogether lovely, and that men are such [illegible] [illegible] for the [illegible] any girl can bother [illegible] at all.

MISS INNOCENCE

BIRDS OF A FEATHER.

To the Marriage Editor: After having read the majority of letters printed in this column I have come to the conclusion that we are no nearer the solution of the problem than when it started. This is my opinion:

Taken on a whole, a universal question marriage [illegible] the good of [illegible] in general [illegible] law or ceremony [illegible] in the eyes of [illegible] and [illegible] far short of [illegible] faint remains [illegible] concerned [illegible] we don't know [illegible] with them [illegible] son to [illegible] the right [illegible] don't study [illegible] know what they wa[illegible]

I think birds [illegible] flock together. [illegible] people mix with [illegible] religious people [illegible] then they [illegible] and make [illegible] self an [illegible] believe there are [illegible] without [illegible] too [illegible] long unless they [illegible] each other. [illegible] seen [illegible] ures and troubles [illegible] I see [illegible]

[illegible] BORN

WIVES ARE INTERESTED

Marriage Editor

I wish to [illegible] wrote in your [illegible] the majority of [illegible] themselves with [illegible] tions that arise [illegible] in this [illegible] always willing [illegible] the problems with her husband that meet with him.

The wife is always willing to solve her husband's problems [illegible] it is the husband who does not want his wife to solve [illegible] problems with him.

MOTHERS AT FAULT

Marriage Editor

Is marriage a success? I say yes. I married [illegible] I have one daughter and [illegible] We were very happy [illegible] husband was a workingman [illegible] But [illegible] believe [illegible] day [illegible] supper and [illegible] upon his return. I [illegible] a widow some time and [illegible] the kind and loving care [illegible] are good women still, who would appreciate a good home and [illegible] mothers of today are to blame as the girls are [illegible] to have a [illegible]

East [illegible] A READER

BLAMES THE MEN.

To Marriage Editor:

I am [illegible] to [illegible] alone [illegible] young men would read [illegible] of today— [illegible] paint and powder. But remember [illegible] she is some mother's daughter. You may have a sister of your own. I do not blame the girl as much as I do the man. But remember if you cannot speak to her as a gentleman, do not speak to her at all. There is many a young girl to-day with head hung in shame and sorrow through the fault of a man. A man may have any amount of faults, there is nothing said, it is soon forgotten. Let a woman commit a fault of any kind, no matter how small, she is stained forever. I have traveled through a great part of the world and am not married. But, men, when you choose your wife make sure she is the woman you will have for life—stop and think. After that woman has willingly laid down her life to become the mother of your family, and is not as tidy as she was when you and her were lovers, do not forget her and start your old habits. If you do, you will make a very unhappy home and it will end in the divorce court. Take this as a motto: If I cannot speak well of a woman, I will not speak of her at all.

ROBERT FARLEY

FINDS POWDER HELPS.

To Marriage Editor of Boston American—Is marriage a success? I'll say so. I know my father and mother made a success of it. Why can't we younger ones? I'm yet single, but it is not my fault as I have gone out to dances and tried to be as attractive as possible but yet have not succeeded. I tried to be without paint and powder but I think [illegible] now for [illegible] to [illegible] sorry not to make [illegible] as [illegible]

Over sixty million breakfasts with Maple Karo last year

Does it interest you to know that Maple Karo outsells all different kinds of maple syrups? Delicious flavor—moderate price the reason

Two big reasons stand out for the record breaking sales of Maple Karo.

First—the flavor of Maple Karo is not an "imitation." The makers are the world's largest users of the purest and best flavored maple sugar.

Over a thousand tons are brought annually from Vermont and Canada—where the finest maple trees grow.

This sugar is used to make Maple Karo and to give it its delicious flavor.

The second reason is quite as interesting as the first:

Maple Karo is remarkably moderate in price—selling at a lower price than any other syrup of approaching quality and flavor.

Over five million cans were sold last year.

This moderate price permits you to let the children have all they want. It satisfies their natural craving for preserves and other sweets that are so expensive now-a-days.

Get a can of Maple Karo in the Green Can from your grocer today. If you are not pleased with it, the grocer will gladly return your money.

YALE PLAYERS SHOULD PROVE EXCELLENT MUD HORSES

DAMP TURF WILL SLOW CRIMSON

Weight of Eli Linemen Will Offset Harvard's Superior Speed in Charging

By CHARLES E. PARKER

The [illegible] system seems to work well at Yale.

If the Yale football [illegible] full of gloom and a session of [illegible] weather comes along [illegible] perceptibly.

Such weather conditions have prevailed for the past three or four days and just about now Yale is figuring it has a good chance of beating Harvard.

Yale plans to ooze into a victory, at least such is the contention of those who have [illegible] failure to prove [illegible] [illegible] there [illegible] rain and [illegible] the [illegible]

A [illegible] the [illegible] ball [illegible] of man, [illegible] gives to [illegible] decided advantage in both offensive and defensive [illegible] surface prevails at New Haven [illegible] will reap benefits along all three lines.

Harvard Team Much Better Drilled

The Harvard team is [illegible] better drilled organization of the two [illegible] another [illegible] The [illegible] organization. Its line charges somewhat faster [illegible] end and forwards [illegible] the [illegible] But on a muddy field [illegible] might not be [illegible] Blue and an offense that requires the backs to twist and turn [illegible] to prove [illegible] addition to [illegible] Harvard's [illegible] enjoy the advantages [illegible] conditions.

There is no [illegible] knowledge that Yale's [illegible] is the [illegible] a wet field will present [illegible] advantages [illegible] Harvard [illegible]

Yale Has Best Chance on Muddy Field

Given the advantages of a wet field will present the Yale team keyed up to the proper fighting pitch might prove [illegible] the Crimson.

The [illegible] meeting of [illegible] eleven individuals. The Yale team has been a team of individuals ever since the war, and through the recent Princeton game, and in the few days of this week it would be impossible to develop such individuals into a machine such as Harvard boasts. But with [illegible] individuals [illegible] and Yale [illegible]

The [illegible] Princeton last Saturday [illegible] had because of that fact. But the Harvard line is not so speedy as was Princeton's and [illegible] has to pull its feet from [illegible] each charge [illegible] edge [illegible] of speed [illegible] always has been and will continue to be [illegible] Blue.

Yale Has Everything to Win Saturday

Not handicapped [illegible] to face super or speed the Eli vanguard may shine and [illegible] and Yale plays [illegible] line stuff Yale may go as Yale did four years ago.

Aided by a wet field Yale will need only fighting spirit to make Yale a most formidable team and there ought to be someone in New Haven who could talk the boys into playing as have Yale teams of old [illegible] has everything to win and nothing to lose in Saturday's contest [illegible] Harvard has everything to lose [illegible] in a strict football sense [illegible] to gain in its game with [illegible] defeated Yale.

Big Three Football Poor in Quality

Will the Harvard-Yale game offer a better brand of football [illegible] has been evidenced in the first [illegible] contests of the so-called Big Three series?

This question is being quite generally discussed by those who not so long ago habitually looked for this series to produce the highest type of play, but who now are beginning to realize that many other teams are furnishing a much more brilliant brand of the game.

The Harvard-Princeton game while intensely interesting to the adherents of the two schools, abounded in poor football and almost inexcusable displays of a lack of football intelligence, while the Yale-Princeton game was even more unattractive from the strict football standpoint. The statement of the Harvard head coach that the same plays Harvard employed twelve years ago still form the basis of the Harvard system is not so much a credit to the system as it is a censure of the ability of Harvard's Big Three opponents, for Harvard has no premium on mystery plays.

DUNCAN'S GOLF BEST OF YEAR

Winner of British Open Showed Superior Brand in Last Day at Deal

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

The most remarkable golfing feats of the 1920 season might be nominated [illegible] as follows:

George Duncan's play on the final thirty-six holes of the British open championship at Deal, when he pulled himself from the ruck to the top position.

Chick Evans' win of the United States amateur championship after apparently being beaten in a third round match by Reggie Lewis.

The fine golf of Miss Alexa Stirling in winning the Canadian and United States titles.

The efforts of Harry Vardon, past fifty years of age, to win the open title of the United States, and his finishing in a tie for second, but one shot behind the winner.

It was an [illegible] of a great golfer being able to produce his best game when put to test in a championship [illegible]

In winning the Canadian and United States titles this year Miss Stirling attained the best [illegible] ever [illegible] by a woman player on this [illegible] Her game was [illegible] more [illegible] winning [illegible] the Atlanta player was expected [illegible] but her fine [illegible] was beyond expectations.

Miss Stirling said at Cleveland, in the United States championship where she reached her best form, that she had never driven so far in her career, nor hit the ball with such certainty. Miss Stirling gave a wonderful exhibition. The writer has not seen any men golfers who swung better on the ball than Miss Sterling did at Cleveland. When Miss Sterling found herself swinging so well and easily she felt she could let out and hit the ball hard, and she obtained more distance than ever before. At Hamilton in the Canadian championship, she had one round in [illegible] and at Cleveland, over a more difficult course, she was consistently around 83.

Vardon's Great Feat Was Remarkable

If Harry Vardon was any other golfer but Harry Vardon his feat at Toledo would stand as the big achievement of the year. That was a snappy field at Toledo full of young and brilliant players, yet Vardon, the great veteran, past fifty, left most of them behind him before the seventy-

GOOD MAT BOUTS AT NORWOOD

Wrestling Fans See Donnell Beat Lurick and Jacobson Down Roscitte of New York

Norwood wrestling fans enjoyed two good bouts at Everett Hall when Frank Lurick of Boston lined up against Charles Donnell of Norwood, best two out of three, and Ole Jacobson of Norwood paired off with Angelo Roscitte of New York. Donnell won the first match, and Jacobson, considered by his friends as a real "comer," was easily successful in the second.

Lurick won the first fall in the match with Donnell, Norwood's wrestling [illegible] in 29m 3s, by a body hold and hammer lock.

The second fall went to Donnell in 2m 3s, using the flying head lock. The third fall was won by Donnell in 1m 1s.

Jacobson used the body scissors hold in obtaining his fall from Roscitte in 21m 30s. Roscitte was slightly injured and the match did not go on. Henry J. Pfaak of Boston was referee.

Wladek Zbyszko Fit for Hard Bout

Wladek Zbyszko, the Polish Hercules, is in wonderful form for his battle with Raymond Caseau this evening, and as the latter is one of the roughest heavyweights in the game, it looks as if the wrestling fans who trek to the Grand Opera House this evening will get plenty of action from start to finish. Caseau is more aggressive and relentless than Kilonis and intends to pit his great speed and power against the Pole in the hope of getting the latter's nanny early in the match. They will go to a finish under championship rules.

Charley Metro meets Billy Ellas in the semi-final with Tommy Record and John Carlson clashing in the opening number. Both matches go to a finish.

Shorty drops in on New York!

HERE WE are, PETE!

New York
Wednesday night.

Camped once more in the plumb centre of our old stamping grounds—rubbing elbows with the roaring racket and running flush into more electric displays, blazing posters and smashing signs that sound the joys of Camel Cigarettes than you'd ever believe could be jammed into one town!

When I hit Broadway this p.m. I'd said the Reynolds folks had transplanted "Camel City" right up here!

It seems like all New Yorkers have adopted Camels as their own personal brand! And, Pete, since this is the original speed town, it's only what you expect when you see 'em carry a package of Camels in each coat pocket! If their right hand is busy they dig out their left hand deck—they just won't lose time getting a Camel lighted! That's the gait around here, old thorobred!

And, Peter, the New Yorker has his own A-1 pet reason why he's so keen for Camels! For instance, Doc Marshall will bet his car on Camels quality against any cigarette in the world! Bill James says to me:—"Shorty, there never was mild, mellow body like Camels!" And, as for Dan Boggs—he spills it that Camels are the only cigarette free from any unpleasant cigaretty aftertaste or cigaretty odor! And, he knows! Frank Frazer will tell you it's Camels wonderful Turkish and Domestic blend! And, ALL of them are right!!!

And, Pete, old proof-of-the-pudding—you tell 'em that Missouri hasn't anything on little old New York when it comes to that "show me" stuff—on cigarettes or anything else!

Sincerely
Shorty.

PLAN GAME OF TITLE CALIBRE

Tigers Have Made Fine Record in Big Contests This Year

New York, Nov. 18.—Princeton's Tigers have been invited to meet the best football team on the Pacific coast in the annual tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's Day, it was learned here today. No decision regarding the invitation has been made by the Princeton athletic authorities, it was said.

Princeton has had a big year on the gridiron. It played a tie game with Harvard and defeated Yale easily.

Harvard made the trip to California last year and scored a 7 to 6 victory over Oregon.

Princeton Stars to Be Back Next Fall

Princeton, Nov. 18.—While most colleges are thinking now of the game Saturday, Princeton, her season over, is putting her thoughts on next year's team, and these thoughts are very pleasant to the tiger. Of the men who started against Yale, only two, Captain Mac Callahan and Armant Legendre will graduate.

Add to these Shad Davis, Joe Schreiter, Charles Hasey and Whitey Thomas and you have all who got in either the Yale or Harvard games who will graduate. Of course there are a good lot of substitutes who are seniors, as John McCaull, Jack Raymond, Alan Knox and Ted Speers, but [illegible] of the seventeen who earned their letter this year eleven will be back.

Then too there was a dandy team of ineligibles and substitutes many of whom should prove something in 1921.

For centre next year Coach Bill Roper will have Louis Lins[illegible], former Exeter star and member of the 1923 freshmen, and Don Griffin, a transfer from Penn, where he captained [illegible] year's [illegible]. Next Fall for guard there will be the present incumbents Jim McMannon and Mil[illegible], and Pink Baker and Bill Morgan, both varsity men in 1919, who flunked out.

Stan Keck and Bob Hooper will both be on deck for tackle and so will Frank Ruta, who was first choice until injured this Fall. Dixey, a transfer from Ohio State, and Walter Camp's third [illegible] for All-American in 1919, and [illegible] regular on the Navy twelve months back.

Ed Stinson will be the only varsity wing back, but if Hoons Snively, 1923 star, can hit his studies satisfactorily, he will be in good graces again.

Every member of the backfield which started against Yale will be back, Don Lourie, Frank Murray and Hank Garrity being juniors and Ralph Gilroy a sophomore. Al Wittmer, 1922, and Jack Cleaves, 1923, also earned their "P" and are scheduled for a return. From the scrub eleven is Dutch Hendrion, a phenomenal youth from Pitt, who has been attracting a lot of attention.

SWEATERS DENIED TO HARVARD FRESHMEN

The Harvard Athletic Committee has decided that sweaters will not be awarded this year to freshmen. The body decided to forbid the use of any part of Soldiers Field for advertising purposes by the flying of kites and that every possible means would be made to prevent the flying of airplanes over the Stadium on game days.

SPORT EDITORIAL

Consider the "Scrub"

The "scrub," as we understand it, is the fellow who plays on the second string football outfit at college to afford practice for the important varsity eleven. Sometimes the "scrub," by dint of earnest second stringing, works himself into the ranks of the big fellows; sometimes he is just a "scrub" throughout his college career.

He is unhonored and unsung. The cheers evoked by the agile yell leaders at the big games are not for him. The best he gets in football life is a thundering walloping every day when the varsity players maul him and his fellow "scrubs" about the practice field.

He is just the trial horse, just the sparring partner, just the foil for the more brilliant footballers. He is just a "scrub," a menial in the gridiron kitchen, the pigskin of fate.

Yet without the "scrub" there could be no finished, polished varsity eleven to take the field against an opponent 'mid the roaring of fifty thousand people. Without their practice on the "scrub," the varsity would all be "scrubs," too.

A lot of us, in daily life, are "scrubs." We furnish the training for our more scintillating brethren, and but for us some of them would have little sparkle.

There is room for only a certain number up there on the varsity of life, and we cannot all be first-string players.

None the less, we have our uses. If we are good "scrubs" and furnish excellent opposition against the varsity, we contribute to their prowess, and who shall say that we do not thus benefit mankind, after all?

Four Inches of Snow Halts Green's Work

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 18.—Four inches of snow prevented outdoor practice for the Dartmouth football men, so the coaches sent them through a long indoor drill. Sid Holbrook's and Jack Cannell's "Brown" team ran up against the Varsity Academy scrimmage, with the "Bruins" having the ball all the time.

Once again the Brown plays and men were gone over carefully for the varsity. After an hour of scrimmaging the squad was sent through a long signal drill.

The Green defence with Brown game is expected to be the best that Dartmouth has [illegible]. Robertson and Shelburne are two of the best defensive backs [illegible], while the punting of the former should keep the Green goal line out of danger much of the time.

Jordan, Robertson, Burke and Shelburne were in the backfield. Holbrook was given a chance to run the team from the quarterback position and will probably see action from there Saturday.

Bower is sure to get into the backfield at some time during the game, as he has been one of the mainstays in the Green offense all season. [illegible] was at centre as usual, with Merritt and Crisp as guards, Boerger and Sonnenberg at tackles and Lynch and Moore on the ends.

This is without doubt the strongest team that the Green has been able to put on the field all year. With Robertson punting and hurling the forward passes much of the worry of the coaches is removed.

Shevlin's Manager Decries Siegal

By JACK CONWAY.

"Nate Siegal will have to beat Eddie Shevlin before he will be taken seriously as a champion," declared Billy Henderson as he glided into the sporting department today.

"Shevlin has already beaten Siegal once," continued Henderson. "The tussle was staged at Mechanics Building last Saturday. Nate fought courageously, but Shevlin was too fast and clever for his rival. Eddie also beat Siegal at his own game, the gentle art of punching.

"If you have watched Shevlin closely in his last few tussles, you will notice that he no longer relies entirely upon science and speed to win his ring engagements. He walks in close and outpunches the other fellow.

CHAPTER III.—Continued

"JENNIE—there are about seven different persons in you!"

"You should be glad, not grouchy, over that," the mocking voice returned promptly. "When one of the persons went out there are still several more left of me. . . . Come on, my son, what is it?"

He looked at her, provoked but helpless. He had learned that he was no match for her in words or in moods.

"Jennie, I'd like to be your father just long enough to spank you!" Then he smiled—an open, boyish smile—and ran a big hand through his tangle of yellowish hair. "Yes, you're [illegible] I guess I like [illegible]. Well, the first thing I wanted to tell you is, I got a new job and a better job."

Again [illegible] she was frankly delighted. "I'm awfully glad, Harry! What is it?"

"With Harrison & Company—the big contracting firm—in the engineering department. And good pay, Jennie—thirty a week."

"That is splendid, Harry! How did you get it?"

"I got it, miss, because they saw I was the best man for the place."

"Of course. But you must have had an introduction or recommendation. Who helped you with that?"

"Sam Conway."

"Sam Conway!" she exclaimed.

"Yes, Sam Conway. He's some sort of silent partner in the firm."

She had become suddenly sober. "That's one part of it that I can't be glad about, Harry."

"Why?"

"You know that whenever Sam Conway helps you or gives you anything, he makes you pay for it—sometime—somehow. And the way he makes you pay when paytime comes—it's not always the way you'd rather pay."

"There's nothing in this, and never will be, for Sam Conway!" exclaimed Harry. "He just did it because he's my friend."

"You mean you think he's your friend."

"Now, listen here, Jennie!" The young fellow's face had flushed, there was an emphatic ring to his voice. "These stories about Sam Conway are all bunk. Sam's a politician, yes, but the people who think of Sam Conway as a scheming [illegible] have got Sam all wrong! Sam is a good fellow!—and he's a good straight friend, who'd do anything for his friends!—and he's certainly done a lot for me! I tell you, Sam's all right!"

"I hope he'll be so in your case, Harry. But—be careful!"

"Sam's all right!" he repeated.

"I've said all I wanted to say. Let's not talk any more about that part of it." She was smiling again. "Anyhow, Harry, I'm hoping it's going to prove a big thing for you."

"It's going to, you bet!" he declared, still aggressive.

But before her smile all the stiff [illegible] which had [illegible] in behalf of his friend, softened [illegible] natured young fellow of five minutes before. He put his hands in his pockets, spread his feet a trifle, and regarded her with smiling audacity.

"I guess you can guess the chief reason why I'm glad about this job."

"Because you can buy more red neckties."

"Because I'm in right—I'll be promoted—and I'll be making real money in about two years. And in two years you'll be [illegible] through high school. And when you're eighteen, Miss Jennie Malone, you and I are going to get married."

"Oh, we are, are we—just like that," she returned coolly. "Well, if that's your guess of what I'm guessing, Mr. Harry Edwards, you'd better guess another guess for me."

She was sober now and she looked him straight in the eyes, and she spoke with a finality and cool air of worldly maturity that seemed strangely out of keeping in one of her years. "Don't try to kid yourself, [illegible] I like you a lot—you're a nice boy—but that little plan is never going to work out. I [illegible] ideas of my own—and I've [illegible] that you don't fit into them."

"Oh, I know you have some kind of crazy ideas, you and your father. But listen, Jennie, I'm going to make good, and make good big—for you!"

"I hope you make good, Harry, but you're not going to do it for me."

"For you—oh, yes, I am!" he returned, his chin setting.

"Well, I suppose I can't prevent [illegible] that way—and it's not going to bother me a lot since you date it all two years from now. So let's adjourn this discussion." She glanced at a little clock on top of the piano. "I've got to go down stairs to see dad for a while. You can wait here, if you like." She started, then halted as she caught a look in his face and an instinctive movement of his arms. "Don't try any spooning as I go by you, Harry—I don't like it," she warned him. "If you do, something may happen that won't make you very happy."

She passed him, and he made no move. At the door she [illegible] and smiled teasingly.

"[illegible] be a [illegible] Harry, when you grow up—if that ever happens!"

"I'll be grown up to the exact size to fit you in two years!" he retorted.

She Gazed Into the Cafe

She laughed, mockingly, and shut the door behind her—and in so doing, she shut Harry instantly and completely from her mind. Her attention was all now upon quite another matter—one which had been restlessly in the back of her thoughts this hour or so. She stood a moment in the little hall at the top of the stairway, gathering her wits, then she crept swiftly but quietly down and slipped ever so cautiously through the side door, opening from the hallway, into the cafe, and sidled warily along behind the screens until she was near the door of her father's office. Inch by inch she leaned forward until her vision swept the whole of the interior. As she saw that the office was empty, the tensity of her figure relaxed.

What the Story Is About

How Jenny, the daughter of Black Jerry Malone, the keeper of a low dance hall in New York, was rescued in the very nick of time from her environment and introduced to exclusive New York society through the influence of a former crook is the thrilling basis of this new story, by the author of "Mary Regan." The novel tells mainly of her adventures in the second of the two worlds through which her amazing career takes her, where reminders of her past appear, and the result is many thrilling and dramatic episodes.

She crept to the fissure between screens, and gazed into the cafe. At first she did not see the crowd making merry in their various ways; she had eyes for but one thing, her father. Presently she was convinced that he was not there, and she drew a deep breath of relief.

She now fixed her attention on Slim Jackson, and tried to catch his eye. But to the music of the piano and one violin Slim was again giving an exhibition with his dancing partner. Jennie slipped through the screens and made for the table Slim occupied between numbers.

Her entrance was hailed by a score of voices coming from those persons that the guide of the sightseeing car had indicated as being crooks, confidence men, and kindred gentry. Jennie greeted them easily; almost since her memory began she had known these men, or such as these. She had listened to their adventures; had heard them talk about the police, and suckers, and the public that pretended to be straight; and she had heard them philosophize about life. But whatever [illegible] be their practices elsewhere or with others, they had been careful not to go too far with her. To this extent Black Jerry's bad name had served her well, it had been a ring of safety about her. Men who loved their own skins were inclined to take no liberties with Jennie that might involve a collision with Jerry's temper and strength. In some respects Jennie may have lived her life in what uptown moralists, who had learned the world from sitting in their studies, might term hell; in other respects she had been as safe as though bred in a convent.

While standing at a table and chaffing with a gentleman who was reputed to do some business in the wire-tapping way, she was caught from behind and swept out into the dancing space. Instinctively she fell into step even before she saw who this capturing partner was.

"What do you mean, Slim?" she gasped. "You almost scared me to death!"

"That's all right, Jen. Come on, finish this out with me and let's show this bunch how it really ought to be done!"

Not till then did Jennie notice that Slim's professional partner had sat down and that they two were dancing alone. She caught the sudden interest in the faces of the onlookers. It was in her blood to excite admiration, and instantly, forgetful of caution, she was trying to do her best. She was a natural expert at the then new but now passe tango—light and graceful and quick to follow into every new figure.

"Honest, Jen, I'm not kidding," Slim breathed into her ear—"but it's some relief dancing with you after carrying Daisy around!"

That was great praise, coming from Slim. Slim was a truly remarkable dancer, with a lissome steely grace, and a sense of rhythm in his every muscle—the kind of a partner women dream about. With a flourish and a sweeping bow they finished amid enthusiastic applause. The audience demanded an encore.

"Come on, Jen, let's give 'em a repeat," said Slim.

"I shouldn't have done that one or stayed here this long, only I forgot," whispered Jennie. "I've got to talk to you, Slim. Meet me out in the hall as soon as you can break away without making people guess you're following me."

With that she walked rapidly out, smiling and waving her hand at the applauding tables—who were not seeing as much of Black Jerry's daughter as once they did—her black eyes shining with excitement, her dark cheeks high with color. She slipped through the screens and stood waiting in the hallway, keeping a sharp watch for the first appearance of her father.

Presently Slim was beside her. "Gee, it sure seems a long time since since I've seen you, Jen!"

"Listen, Slim," she whispered rapidly. "I came down awhile ago to see you, but dad was here and I didn't dare risk it."

"And I guess you were a cagy kid not to risk it," he returned, "for Jerry is certainly sore at me."

"It's not just because dad's sore at you, Slim," she went on rapidly, "but I didn't want him to see us together—and I simply had to see you!"

"What's doing, Jen?"

"It's that Morrison check."

He started. "What about that check?"

"I overheard a part of what a plain-clothes man told dad tonight. They've found out about the check and the coppers are on the job. I wanted to slip you word, so you wouldn't be taken by surprise if anything breaks."

"Do you think anything'll break?"

"No. Dad offered to cover the check with good money."

Slim laughed softly, with relief. "Then why worry, Jen, if the sucker is to be squared?"

"That's not all I came to see you about. It's not very much money, but I'm not going to let dad have to pay it. Slim, you've got to come across with your half of that twenty-five."

"You think an awful lot of your dad!" he evaded.

"You bet I do!" she declared sharply. "I wish you were half what he is, then you'd be a real guy, Slim Jackson!"

"Thanks for the wish, Jen." He tried to speak facetiously. "But if it's all the same to you, I'd rather be who I am than to have his name."

But she was not to be diverted; she was instantly back to the point. "Come across with your share!" she demanded.

"Sorry, Jen—but I'm cleaned out."

"You lie, Slim, and you know that you lie," she returned, very steadily, looking him squarely in the eyes. She held out a hand. "The twelve-fifty, Slim—and quick!"

He hesitated, looking meditatively at the commanding, slender figure which still wore its skirts short of a woman's length. Then he reached into a pocket.

"There you are; I was only kidding you, Jen," he laughed. "Have you got your share?"

"No, but I can get it."

"How'll you fix the thing?"

"I'll slip the money in among dad's cash. He'll square that bad check—and think he's out that much—only he'll not be, and he'll never know the difference. If he ever notices the money I slip back, he'll just think he's made a mistake."

You're a Clever Kid

"You're a clever kid, Jen." There was the ring of approval in Slim's voice, but he had really spoken mechanically; his keen faculties had already passed on to the consideration of another point. "Of course nothing is going to break in this check business," he said casually. "Nothing has ever broken in other checks you and I have put through. But I suppose we ought to think out what we're going to do if something does break."

"Yes."

"I figure it like this, Jennie," he went on plausibly. "If they get anybody, they'll get you first, since you wrote the check. Now, if they found out that I'd frisked Morrison for his check-book, tore out a check, had the waiter hand the book back to him, and then gave you the check to fix up—why, they'd soak me good and plenty, me being a man. But if you were just to tell them that you found the check-book on the floor and then filled the check, copying it from the one your dad had cashed—why, the judge would be easy on you, you being a girl, and being able to say you were a first offender. They're always easy on girls, anyhow. Don't you see you come out of it exactly the same either way—you come out easy. I don't want to talk like a cheap guy, Jen—and I wouldn't say a word if it wasn't all the same to you. But the first way, they'll soak me hard; the second way, I'm not even in it at all. Since it'll work out exactly the same to you, Jen, would you mind, if you have to say anything at all, to tell it the second way?"

She nodded. "Sure—that'll be all right, Slim. Good night."

"Wait, Jennie!" He caught her arm. "I say, Jen, there's something I've been waiting a chance to tell you—something big."

"Then tell it quick. I don't dare hang around down here long."

"It's like this, Jen. I'm already too good for this joint. I'm going to be the real thing some day—you just watch me!" His voice had the ring of conviction. Slim's belief in himself was honest, and indeed he had a right to it, for he had ability of its own sort—though even in his bold dream of that moment he did not foresee the high places he was eventually to reach. "Look at Connie Devoe. He started out singing in a joint down here—a joint a damned sight cheaper than this dump—and see what Connie Devoe has done—writing all the big Broadway musical shows. If he could start from down here, and go up, you bet I can, too! Already I've got an opening, and a good one!"

"Congratulations, Slim."

"But listen, Jen. I'm figuring you in this with me."

"Me! How?"

"As dancing partner."

"But you already have Daisy White."

"Daisy—Oh, God, that cow! Why, carrying her as a load, I'm hardly up to the level of holding down even this job. She's canned—though she doesn't know it yet."

"Why, I thought you and Daisy were to be married?"

"Nothing to it, Jen. Oh, there may have been a love scene or two—but just the usual thing, you know. Nothing to it at all, Jennie! Listen, now—get this straight. I've got a good idea for an act—and such a team as we'd make, we'd soon be headliners!"

"I suppose it's also your idea that we'd live together?"

"Sure, Jennie. That follows, don't it? You know I'm off my bean about you, and I'd sure treat you fine."

The Second Generation

A SPLENDID SERIAL OF AMERICAN HOME LIFE

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XVII.

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

MRS. REGINALD LAWRENCE had been correct in her surmise that, so far as young Throckmorton was concerned, there was another girl than her daughter Irene.

Not that Peter had paid any serious attention to the only daughter of the Lawrence family. He had liked Mortimer sincerely, and had appreciated the opportunity to enter his set. This was made easier by the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence, and by the co-operation of their daughter.

"If she were only a good-looker," Peter confided to Mary when brother and sister were discussing their social prospects, "and if she were not so wooden and self-satisfied, I might care to cultivate her. For, as you and I know, the Lawrences are in the swim, and we might paddle along with them."

Mary nodded. "They have position, of course—but there are others, Pierre. At first they were a bit of a boost to you because you had not met many New Yorkers. But now you have all the invitations you want. And I have, too. Yet," gravely, "I do not care to drop the first people who showed me any attention here. So I am sorry that you do not hit it off with Irene. But I don't bl[ame] you. She is not always pleasant."

"I guess she's jealous of you, Molly," Peter ventured. "You receive lots more attention than she does. By the way—be careful about that young Sheldon. I saw you dancing with him at the Atterbury's last night. He's said to have a shady reputation in some lines."

Mary laughed. "You forget, my dear boy, that I am not an ingenue. I am quite able to take care of myself."

"Well—look out, anyway. I caught Mort Lawrence scowling at Sheldon last evening."

To Peter's surprise, his sister looked annoyed, and flushed hotly.

"It is none of Mortimer Lawrence's business whom I dance with," she declared.

Peter Begins to Wonder

Her brother regarded her curiously. He wondered what that flush meant—whether it was the outcome of self-consciousness at the mention of Lawrence's interest in her or at the recollection of Sheldon's attentions to her.

Peter hoped it was the former. He had heard some rather unpleasant hints about Drake Sheldon—yet none of them had as yet been definite enough for him to feel justified in mentioning them to his sister. Perhaps the worst accusation had been that Sheldon gambled heavily and was not always able to pay his debts.

Moreover, Peter had his own reasons for not wishing to start with his sister a discussion as to the man from whom she received attention. For such discussion might lead to embarrassing questions from her as to the girls with whom he associated.

[illegible] the statement already made [illegible] Mrs. Lawrence had been correct in her surmise that there was some girl whom Peter Throckmorton admired more than he admired the aristocratic Irene.

But, naturally, Mrs. Lawrence really knew nothing about it. Indeed nobody but Peter himself and the girl in question knew much about it yet. And, after all, there was, so far, very little to know.

The girl was Theo Dallas. She was a chorus girl in the musical comedy to which Rufus and Sophia Throckmorton accompanied their children and their friends some weeks ago.

Peter had seen Theo for the first time that evening and had been attracted by her grace and good looks.

She did not occupy an important place in the chorus—but was near the end of the row of singing and dancing girls—all in very short skirts and very big hats. Something about her made Peter study her through his opera glasses.

She was slight of build, but not too short. She was also a brunette, and Peter [illegible] of course, "made up," but that fact could not prevent his detecting that underneath the rouge her cheeks were smooth and round nor that she had a pretty mouth and bright eyes.

Irene Is Curious

And she did not look bold and brazen as did some other members of the company.

Irene Lawrence had sat next to Peter that evening.

"What are you staring at?" she had demanded suspiciously.

"I was trying to see if I could get on to that particular dance-step," Peter replied promptly and mendaciously. "I have been studying that chap in the back row at this end. Do you see what a peculiar little kick he gives just once in so often?"

It was impossible to get in touch with this girl tonight, for he was the host [illegible]

The next day was Sunday, so Peter was forced to wait for forty-eight hours before seeking out the object of his admiration. But on Monday evening the end of the performance found him waiting at the stage entrance of the theatre for the coming of a girl whose name he had ascertained was Theo Dallas.

The Treatment of Fever

By Brice Belden, M. D.

SOME knowledge of the [illegible] and treatment of common illnesses is necessary in the handling of sick people before the doctor arrives. Intelligent co-operation may also help the doctor in his fight against the disease if for some reason or other a trained nurse is not in at[tendance] [illegible] either slight or serious, is the phenomenon called fever. This phase of illness must be watched carefully in the absence of medical aid, as a protracted high fever may do considerable damage during its course.

Fever is caused by a depression of the nerve centres by toxins, or poisons, circulating in the blood. These toxins are present in the blood in most cases because of bacterial infection.

When the fever has run its course it will end with a sudden drop of temperature, which is called a crisis, or it may be terminated by a gradual drop in the temperature, called lysis.

Some of the important results of a fever which has run for some time are an increased waste of the tissues of the body, causing emaciation; a lessening of the secretions of the digestive system and kidneys, and an extremely rapid destruction of the red blood corpuscles, which, in turn, causes anemia.

Fever patients should be kept very quiet [illegible] the heart is likely to have become weak in the course of the fever or to have been affected by the toxins in the blood. Even the slightest exertion will increase the work which the weakened heart has to do. Any excitement or emotional strain must be carefully avoided because, excitement can bring on delirium.

Fresh air and coolness are very soothing, but great care must be taken not to allow the patient to be in a draught, because if the patient is chilled the blood vessels at the surface of the body will become contracted and drive the blood to the centre of the body, thus causing a congestion of the internal organs.

Cold baths are good for fever patients as they quiet the nerves and stimulate the circulation. Baths also tend to lessen the fever. Water should be given freely.

Not a Catalogue

A [illegible] lady monologist was giving her entertainment. The audience had been worked up to the proper amount of attention, when a large black cat meandered in from the wings, sat down in the centre of the stage, and undertook its feline ablutions. "Sh! Sh!" came from the lady artiste, promptly as a ripple of laughter arose. "Scat! This is a monologue—not a catalogue." And the audience demonstrated its approval of the artiste's wit.

The Magic Charm

A LITTLE STORY OF A BRIDE'S TRIUMPH

By Ruth Logan.

"IT'S [illegible] idea that ever entered your head, and I won't stand it, Nancy. I'll not have our friends teasing the life out of us."

Nancy, bride of three months, stifled the sobs that rose in her throat and rushed from the room. Tom followed her and found her in her dainty little boudoir dissolved [illegible] Please, don't cry so hard, Nan. Maybe I was a bit rough about it, but I mean what I said. I won't have the thing about the house, and that's all there is to it." He squared his shoulders as he issued his ultimatum and strode from the room.

At eleven Nancy went to bed. She could not sleep, but she lay propped up in pillows reading a horrible story about thieves and detectives. Finally she hurled the book across the room and buried her head in the pillows and sobbed again.

Suddenly she reached up and pulled the cord of the light above her bed. She'd go to sleep and when Tom came home he'd find his absence hadn't made the slightest difference to her. Contrary to her expectations she did go to sleep. She must have been asleep about an hour when suddenly she awoke and sat bolt upright in bed.

It must be midnight or more, she reasoned, and Tom hadn't returned. Tenderly she reached over and touched the coverlet on the bed that stood just on the other side of the telephone table. Her heart gave a little leap of happiness. Tom had slipped in and gone to bed without waking her.

Nancy Wonders

"I wonder if he locked the front door," Nancy asked herself. "He never remembers to do it."

She drew on her kimono in the darkness and found her way through the unlighted hall to the front part of the house. Quite as she had expected, she found the door unlocked. It was a beautiful night and she knew that sleep would be long in returning to her once she had become so wide awake. The front porch looked inviting, and Nancy slipped through the door and curled up in the swinging [illegible]

"I wonder," she went on asking herself, "if I've been unreasonable? Perhaps any man would feel the same way Tom does. Maybe I'd better give in this time and let him think he's overruled me."

The more she thought of it the more it seemed to her that Tom was right in this instance. Finally she jumped from the swing and tiptoed into the front hall. She carried a straight backed chair onto the veranda and stood on it. The thing was very hard for a girl as small as Nancy and at first she thought it would be impossible. But at last she succeeded.

Back she went to bed with the object of the quarrel tucked tightly in her arm. She went to sleep with it under her pillow. The first thing she would do upon waking in the morning would be to hold it out for Tom's inspection and approval.

"Nancy," the word was spoken in a whisper.

She opened her eyes at the sound of Tom's voice. "What is it?" She had spoken out loud.

"Hush. There must be some one in the house. I saw the flash through the mirror of your dressing table. Keep quiet. We haven't a revolver in the house."

"Keep quiet while they steal my silver and rings and everything!" Nancy's voice rose to a scream. "You get right up and fight them."

"My heavens, what can I fight with? You were dead right about needing a gun."

Nancy's voice had carried to the ears of the marauder. He strode into their room and thrust a gun into Tom's face. "Don't make a sound," he commanded, "or I'll blow you to atoms. That goes for the little lady too."

"You can't bluff us," replied Nancy, and jerked the light by which she had been reading earlier in the evening.

"I can kill both of you," came the vicious answer. "I am not here to invite you to a pink tea. Where are your rings?"

Burglar Drops

"On my fingers and that's where they're going to stay."

"A little manners, miss. Hand 'em over." The masked burglar strode around the end of the bed and thrust the gun under her chin.

Tom sprang out of bed and seized the huge figure of the man by the shoulders. "You lay a hand on her and I'll—"

Before Tom realized what was happening the burglar dropped in a heap at his feet. He had gone out completely and it was not a difficult matter to hand him over to the police. They pondered the wound in his head, from which the blood had poured freely, while Nancy fluttered about, assisting in the process of reviving the burglar.

"Sure," said Sergeant Henty. "It's some blow you gave him, Tom. If he had a brain you'd have come close to puncturing it."

"Not guilty, sergeant," admitted Tom proudly, throwing his arm about the shoulder of Nancy. "The little woman pinged him with something or other—darned if I know just what. I've been too flustrated to bother about finding out what kind of a weapon she used."

Then, before the widening eyes of Tom, Nancy held up the object of their bitter discussion. "I went to take it down, dear, because I thought maybe after all you were right and folks would laugh at us for being superstitious."

"Laugh! Well, let them laugh. Every family ought to have its horseshoe over the door. Give it to me, dear." And he placed it once more in the spot Nancy had selected for it.

The Boasting Man

By Beatrice Fairfax

WE all know him—he's the spoiled darling of fortune who eats all the frosting off the cake and who leaves the bread crusts for other folks. He's inclined to puff out his chest a bit and declaim that he always gets his own way, that he's invincible.

Does his boastfulness annoy folks?

Well, some people are irritated beyond measure by "swank" and some are weak enough to be impressed by it. There is inherent in most of us true admiration for success. This leaves us with a certain traditional reverence for the thing which seems to mean crowns of victory and bay leaves.

We want to join the procession and to give our share of respect to the hero of the hour. And we are not always selective enough to get it quite clear in our own minds that the hero of the hour is likely to be sitting back in a corner making no boast about it. If we want him to come out and be kowtowed to, we'll have to drag him into the limelight.

Folks who amount to a whole lot don't have to be talking about it all the time. Charm, power, ability—all speak for themselves. They get results. The owner of any great and outstanding ability doesn't have to say much about himself; his accomplishments speak for him.

The truly great are at once simple and humble. That is a principle that admits of no variation. Any one who isn't humble in the face of the vast and largely unexplored mysteries of life isn't capable of understanding even so much as their vastness.

Now the man who sits around talking about his luck, his ability to work the game of life his way, his power to make a hit with every one he meets, is probably expressing his pet ambition rather than his most usual accomplishment.

Don't you know plenty of children who like nothing better than to dress up in grown folks costumes and to announce they are kings and queens and all sorts of popular heroes?

You never heard a little girl saying:

"I'm pretending I'm mother."

She says

"I am mother."

The folks who boast that they always get what they want are like that. You don't have to envy them. You don't have to be bitter because the plums of life don't fall off the tree into your outstretched hands the way they do into the hands of the fellow who tells you that he always gets what he wants, that somehow or other he's lucky. You just have to smile tolerantly and realize that he's play-pretending the way the kiddies do.

The man who gets the prizes of life—wins them.

What You Owe Your Child

By Dr. Wm. A. McKeever

MAKE every working hour of your child a matter of alertness and keen intelligence. Stupidity is not exactly a disease. It is rather a habit which grows out of a poor adjustment of the young life to its immediate surroundings. It is not a very difficult task to keep a normal child in a ruddy glow of health and thus to encourage the habit of a keen, quick childish wit.

The best way to give your child a fresh, wide-awake mind is to keep his body in a condition of rhythm and healthy growth. "Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy and wealthy and wise." True enough for a man, but still more a necessary maxim for the child.

The sleep, the diet, the exercise, the bathing and the medication necessary for the health poise of the boy or girl may seem to require a heavy expenditure of the time and energy of the parents, but it all proves to be a splendid investment for the child's future.

Physical health and mental health are both very much matters of habit. If one can show an established physical rhythm at twenty-five, you are warranted in predicting a relatively long mental life for him.

All along the human highway as I travel it extensively there are strewn the wrecks of middle-aged men who are weak apologies of what they ought to be. They are stiff, inert, stupid and dull, no longer even good as human salvage. What is the matter? What is the original cause of such wastage?

My answer is: Bad or ill-balanced physical care during the early growing years. Slow circulation, retarded elimination, backward movement of the poison toxins into the blood channels and into the brain. The green, plastic organism quickly yielded to these faults of care-taking until the entire index of the life force was permanently set back or lowered.

Wherefore, keep your child in the pink of health, if only for the sake of his mental powers and his spiritual longevity. The clogging of the young body means dullness and non-attention, but the healthy child should sparkle with wit and alertness during every waking hour of the day. At all times he is either wide awake or sound asleep, but never merely half-and-half.

From a neglected, stupid childhood many a man goes on the mental scrap-heap at forty and stays there till the last trumpet sounds. If you want to avoid such a fate for your boy, begin now and continue to keep him in trim, good enough for either a fight or a frolic.

Not one dull moment during his waking hours is a good motto for his mind. Not one setback in his health habit, his physical rhythm, through neglect or dissipation, is a good motto for his body. And the last will make the first easy. He should then still be a snappy, spry young fellow at three score and ten.

Five of the Younger Contestants in the American's Loveliest Girl Contest

MADELINE BUCCOS, Chicopee

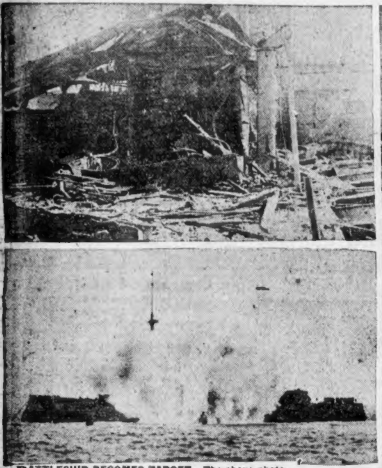
MINNIE KABATCHNICK, Fitchburg

KATHLEEN STAY, Rutland, Vt.

MABEL A. BAYNE, Boston

EVA MIROR, Lowell

THE BOSTON AMERICAN offers $5,000 in gold for photographs of lovely girls. To the girl declared by the judges to be the loveliest girl in New England, the American will pay $3,000 in gold. To the next girl in merit, $1,000 in gold. There will be two third prizes of $500 each. In awarding the prizes the judges will have in mind Arthur Brisbane's definition of beauty. Mr. Brisbane says beauty is "intelligence in a fine setting." The judges will study the photographs, first for intelligence, second for health, and third for physical beauty. There are no strings attached. Just send in your photograph or the photograph of your wife, sweetheart, sister or friend. All photographs will be given careful treatment and will be returned when the contest is over. Address all mail to "Loveliest Girl Editor," Boston American, P. O. Box 239, Boston 8, Mass.



BATTLESHIP BECOMES TARGET—The above photographs show the battleship Indiana being blown up by bombs placed aboard her, and some of the damage done. The remnants will be used as a target for the big guns of other ships to practice on. Even old-fashioned warships are cast aside to humor Dame Fashion. —(c) International.

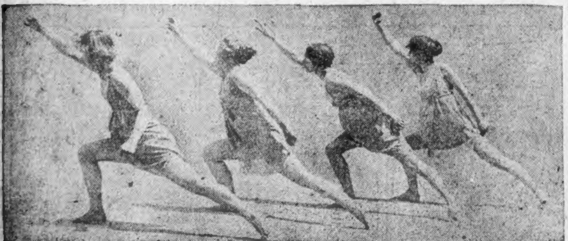
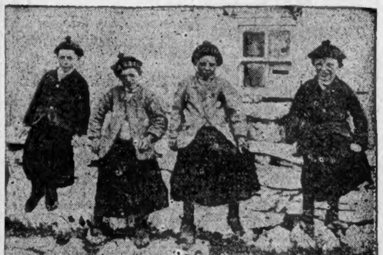
LOSE FIRST GAME IN ENGLAND—The Philadelphia Women's Hockey team lost its first contest abroad when they fell victims to the energetic attack of the Women's Hockey team of Surrey. The game was played at Copse Hill, London. The English girls are dressed in black uniforms. —(c) International.



THAT LEAGUE OF NOTIONS—The other day we read about the League of Nations owing the Belgian government 20,000 francs for cigars smoked by delegates, and smiled. Now comes a picture of a part of the number of Swiss maidens who will dance for the members of the league at the conference in Geneva on the shores of Lake Leman. Each phase of the dance is supposed to demonstrate some aim of the league. This one is "Progress." To make the affair complete, why not have the girls dance up to Uncle Sam with collection plates in their hands and call that phase of the dance "America, We Love Your Gold"? —(c) Keystone.

TODAY'S LESSON—This is a pretzel vender of the Bowery. A pretzel is a cracker with the cramps. Pretzels used to taste good with beer. They always made one want more beer. This old fellow walks about the curb market on Bayard street selling his wares to both buyers and sellers. He used to peddle them to the barrooms and cellars. School dismissed. —(c) International.

LUCKY MAN—It must have been a most important engagement that caused Miss Cyrena Gordon to engage an airplane to take her from Detroit to Chicago in order to arrive by noon the other day. —(c) International.



HEY, KIDS, LOOKA HERE!—How would you like to be dressed like these boys of Inishman, Galway Bay? According to an ancient superstition, bad fairies were partial to little boys, but would not carry off the girls. So the boys of the little island were disguised in dresses to fool the fairies and the custom has remained until this day. We fear they wouldn't last long in a hard game of one-old-cat or football. —(c) International.

Kissing Becoming Lost Art in Paris

Paris, Nov. 13.—Kissing threatens to become a lost art in Paris. A new mouth disease is spreading rapidly. It is caused, according to scientists, by a new microbe which slays the "love germ."

The microbe attacks the tissues of the gums and loosens the teeth to such an extent that the motion of the lips in kissing becomes an operation attended by considerable pain.

A Simple Way To Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—Advertisement.

Curling Hair This Way Preserves Its Beauty

That dull, dead appearance of the hair no longer troubles the woman who has adopted the silmerine method of keeping her tresses in curl. The result is very different from that produced by the drying, devitalizing waving iron. The hair appears more naturally wavy and curly, and the application is really beneficial to the life and growth of the hair.

Any druggist, of course, can supply the liquid silmerine. A small quantity should be put on just before doing up the hair, using for the purpose a clean tooth brush, drawing this down the full length of the hair from root to tip. The effect is delightfully surprising, and there is no discoloration, no stickiness, greasiness nor any other unpleasant accompaniment. The hair is quite manageable, no matter how it is fashioned.—Advertisement.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued

The familiar smell of drugs, the sound of the trickling water in the soda fountain, roused Hodder to reality, to action, and he hurried into the telephone booth, fumbled in the dog-eared book, got Dr. Jarvis's number and called it. An eternity seemed to elapse before he had a reply, heard his coin jangling in the box, recognized the voice of the great doctor's secretary. Yes, the doctor was in: Would he speak to Mr. Hodder of St. John's? . . . An interval, during which Hodder was suddenly struck with this designation of himself. Was he still of St. John's, then? An æon might have elapsed since he had walked down the white marble of its aisle toward the crouching figure in the pew. He was not that man, but another—and still Mr. Hodder of St. John's . . . Then he heard the specialist say, "Hello, Mr. Hodder, what can I do for you?" Heard his own voice in reply, explaining the case. Could the doctor find time? The doctor could: he never was too busy to attend to the poor,—though he did not say so: he would be there by half-past six. The rector hung up the receiver, opened the door of the booth and mopped his brow, for the heat was stifling.

"The doctor will go," he explained in answer to Mr. Bentley's inquiring look.

"Now, sir," said the old gentleman, when they were out of the store, "we have done all that we can for the time being. I do not live far from here. Perhaps you would give me the pleasure of taking supper with me, if you have no other engagement."

No other engagement! Not until then did Hodder remember his empty rooms in the parish house, and the train which was to have borne him away from all this already speeding northward. He accepted gratefully, nor did he pause to speculate upon the mystery by which the stream of his life seemed so suddenly to have been diverted. He had, indeed, no sense of mystery in the presence of this splendidly sane, serene old man, any more than the children who ran after him from the dingy yards and passages, calling his name, clinging to the skirts of his coat. These accepted him simply as an anomalous fact in their universe, grinned at his pleasantries, and held up grimy little hands for the kidney-shaped candy beans he drew forth from his capacious pockets. In the intervals he reminisced to the rector about the neighborhood.

"It seems but a short while ago when the trees met overhead—magnificent trees they were. The asphalt and the soot killed them. And there were fruit trees in that yard——" he pointed with his stick to a littered sun-parched plot adjoining a battered mansion—"all pink and white with blossoms in the Spring. Mr. Hadley lived there—one of our forgotten citizens. He is dead and gone now and his family scattered. That other house, where the boy lies, belonged to Mr. Villars, a relation of the Atterbury family, and I can recall very well a little girl with a pink sash and a white dress who used to come running out to meet me with flowers in her hands. Incredible as it may seem, she picked them in that yard. I thought of her as I went in, how fresh and happy she used to be, and what a different place this was for children then. She must have some of her own by this time."

The character of the street had changed to what might be called shabby-genteel, and they stopped before a three-story brick house—one of a row—that showed signs of scrupulous care. The steps were newly scrubbed, the woodwork neatly painted.

"This is where I live, sir," said Mr. Bentley, opening the door with a latchkey and leading the way into a high room on the right, darkened and cool, and filled with superb, old-fashioned rosewood furniture. It was fitted up as a library, with tall shelves reaching almost to the ceiling.

An Old Negro Came

An old negro appeared, dressed in a swallow-tailed coat. His hair was as white as his master's, and his face creased with age.

"Sam," said Mr. Bentley, "I have brought home a gentleman for supper."

"Yassah, Misteh Ho'ace. I was jest agwine to open up de blin's."

He lifted the wire screens and flung back the shutters, beamed on the rector as he relieved him of his hat, and noiselessly retired. Curiosity, hitherto suppressed by more powerful feelings, awoke in Hodder speculations which ordinarily would have been aroused before; every object in the room bespoke gentility, was eloquent of a day when wealth was honored and respected; photographs, daguerreotypes in old-fashioned frames bore evidence of friendships of the past, and over the marble mantel hung a portrait of a sweet-faced woman in the costume of the thirties, whose eyes reminded Hodder of Mr. Bentley's. Who was she?

Hodder wondered. Presently he found himself before a photograph on the wall beyond, at which he had been staring unconsciously.

"Ah, you recognise it," said Mr. Bentley.

"St. John's!"

"Yes," Mr. Bentley repeated, "St. John's." He smiled at Hodder's glance of bewilderment, and put his hand on the younger man's arm. "That picture was taken before you were born, sir, I venture to say—in 1869. I am very fond of it, for it gives the church in perspective, as you see. That was Mr. Gore's house" — he indicated a square, heavily corniced mansion—"where the hotel now stands, and that was his garden, next the church, where you see the trees above the wall."

The rector turned again and looked at his host, who was gazing at the picture thoughtfully.

"I ought to have remembered," he said. "I have seen your name in the church records, sir, and I have heard Mr. Waring speak of you."

"My dear Mr. Hodder, there is no reason why you should have known me. A great many years have passed since I was a parishioner of St. John's—a great many years."

"But it was you," the rector began, uncertainly, and suddenly spoke with conviction. "It was you who chose the architect, who did more than other men to make the church what it is."

"Whatever I may have done," replied Mr. Bentley, with simple dignity, "has brought its reward. To this day I have not ceased to derive pleasure from it, and often I go out of my way, through Burton street, although the view is cramped. And sometimes," he added, with the hint of a twinkle in his eye, "I go in. This afternoon is not the first time I have seen you, Mr. Hodder."

"But——?" said the rector. He stared at the other's face and the question died on his lips.

"You wonder why I am no longer a parishioner. The time came when I could not afford to be." There was no hint of reproach in his voice, or bitterness. He spoke regretfully, indeed, but as one stating an incontrovertible fact. "I lost my fortune, I could not keep my pew, so I deeded it back to the church. My old friends, Mrs. Dimock and Asa Waring, and others, too, were very kind. But I could not accept their hospitality."

Hodder bowed his head in silence. What thundered indictment of the Church of Christ could have been as severe, as wholly condemning as these few words so dispassionately uttered by the man beside him?

The old darky entered and announced supper.

Hodder had lost his way, yet a hand had been held out to him, and he seized it. With a sense of being led, psychically as well as physically, he followed Mr. Bentley into a large bedroom where a high, four-posted bed lifted a pleated canopy toward the ceiling. And after he had washed his hands they entered a dining-room looking out up on a little yard in the rear, which had been transformed into a garden. Roses, morning glories and nasturtiums were growing against the walls; a hose lay coiled upon the path; the bricks, baked during the day, were splashed with water; the leaves and petals were wet, and the acrid odor of moist earth, mingling with perfumes, penetrated the room. Hodder paused in the window.

"Sam keeps our flowers alive," he heard Mr. Bentley say, "I don't know how."

"I scrubs 'em, sah," said Sam. "Yassah, I washes 'em like chilluns."

He found himself, at Mr. Bentley's request, asking grace, the old darky with reverently bent head standing behind his master; sitting down at a mahogany table that reflected like a mirror the few pieces of old silver, to a supper of beaten biscuits that burned one's fingers, of broiled chicken and coffee, and sliced peaches and cream. Mr. Bentley was talking of other days—not so long gone by—when the great city had been a village, or scarcely more. The furniture, it seemed, had come from his own house in what was called the Wilderness road, not far from the river banks, over the site of which limited trains now rolled on their way eastward toward the northernmost of the city's bridges. He mentioned many names, some remembered, some forgotten—like his own; dwelt on pleasures and customs gone by forever.

"A little while after I moved in here, I found that one old man could not fill the whole of this house, so I let the upper floors," he explained, smilingly. "Some day I must introduce you to my tenants, Mr. Hodder."

By degrees, as Hodder listened, he became calm. Like a child, he found himself distracted, talking, asking questions; and the intervals grew longer between the recurrent nudges of fear when the memory rose before him of the events of the day,—of the woman, the child, and the man; of Eldon Parr and this deed he had done: hinting, as it did, of closed chambers of other deeds yet to be opened, of countless hidden miseries still to be revealed: when he heard once more the tortured voice of the banker, and the question: "How would you like to live in this house—alone?" In contrast, now he beheld the peace in the face of the man whose worldly goods Eldon Parr had taken, and whom he had driven out of the church. Surely, this man had found a solution! What was it?

Hodder thought of the child, of the verdict of Dr. Jarvis, but he lingered on, loth to leave—if the truth be told,—afraid to leave: drawing strength from his host's calm, wondering as to the source of it, as to the life which was its expression; longing, yet not presuming, to question. The twilight deepened, and the old darky lit a lamp and led the way back to the library.

"Sam," said Mr. Bentley," draw up the armchair for Mr. Hodder beside the window. It is cooler there."

BOSTON HEARS NEW SOPRANO

Mme. Birget Engel Gives Delightful Concert at Jordan Hall

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Not for a long time has an artist practically unknown and unheralded enjoyed so successful a debut in Boston as Birget Engel, the Danish lyric soprano, who appeared in Jordan Hall yesterday afternoon.

Despite dreadful weather the hall was well filled, and the audience was much more enthusiastic than the usual cold storage recital crowd.

In the first place Mme Engel is a sweet and attractive personality on the platform. Then she owns a lyric soprano of rare beauty, particularly in the middle and lower registers, and considerable power. She has lung capacity enough to sing a Wagnerian role, and yet she never bellows like so many large voiced singers.

But her greatest gift is a remarkable technique. She sings as smoothly and gracefully as is possible and her skill in management of tone recalls Julia Culp and even Sembrich.

I doubt very much whether many of the audience expected to hear so fine an artist. You take pot luck at recitals. She hadn't sung a single group before she had won them all. The program was intelligently chosen from the Italian, French, German, Scandinavian and English libraries.

I particularly liked "Quel Ruscelletto," by Paradies, and Cesar Franck's "La Procession." The Scandinavian numbers were effective indeed. She honored a local composer, John Densmore, by closing the program with "A Spring Fancy," a really charming song.

The accompaniments by Coenraad V. Bos were of wonderful assistance to the artist. This man has few rivals in the special art of accompanying an artist.

How Two Brilliant Men View the Railroad Remedy

Judge George W. Anderson of the United States Circuit Court at a recent conference of the representatives of public utilities in Washington has declared that our railroads should be nationalized and be operated by the public.

It is interesting and encouraging to follow the development of men like Judge Anderson in the light of their personal experience. Anybody who had told George W. Anderson, the successful lawyer of Boston, having but a dillettante interest in politics fifteen years ago, that he was going to see the day when, as a result of first-hand, rough and tumble experience with the public utilities, he was going to believe that the railroads ought to be operated by the people through their government he would have said that this prophet knew very little about the flight of the birds.

George W. Anderson, lawyer, was appointed to the Public Service Commission of Massachusetts. He took his position rather seriously, as he takes everything that he has to do. He investigated and he wrote some of the most learned opinions on that commission. He proved to be quite a surprise and embarrassment to the railroads and public utilities which came under the jurisdiction of his commission. The railroads especially were quite shocked to find that he considered the law which enjoined his commission to regulate the railroads meant that his commission should regulate the railroads in the interest of the public. Mr. Anderson had a large practice which he could not afford to give up for the small salary paid a member of the Public Service Commission. So the corporations caused a bill to be passed requiring everyone on the commission to give his whole time to it. Everybody knew that the law was aimed at Mr. Anderson, and Mr. Anderson, when it passed, resigned. He then became Interstate Commerce Commissioner and United States Attorney and his opinions have gradually developed from his experience with the railroads until today, as he says, he is convinced that nothing will do except public operation of the railroads.

Somewhat the same course has Mr. Joseph B. Eastman held, who succeeded Mr. Anderson on the Interstate Commerce Commission. The attorney for the American well remembers Mr. Eastman's statement less than ten years ago that he believed that honest, efficient regulation was the real medicine for the railroads. Mr. Eastman served on the Massachusetts Public Utilities Commission and he had a chance to see what regulation, honest and efficient, could do with the great big creatures called railroads. Then Mr. Eastman took his place on the Interstate Commerce Commission and he has had still further opportunity to see what can be done by regulation.

Of course, nobody pretends that the railroads can be trusted to run themselves. The question is either one of public regulation or public operation. Mr. Eastman's gradual change toward public operation is interesting as all the evolutions of Mr. Eastman's opinions are interesting.

How Long Shall New York Keep Boston a Province?

Everybody whose chamber is on the north side of our great metropolitan home knows that the North Station is an abomination that cries out to heaven.

It is an example at once of the mismanagement of our railroads and of the patience, almost doglike patience, and forgiveness of the American public. The station is dirty, smelly and crowded. Now that the shed has been torn down and the trains opened up to the weather the coldest place in Boston is in the walk before its train gates. The natural temperature of the day, without the sun and with the deadly vapors of the escaping coal gas all add to the discomfort and unhealthfulness and even danger of the conditions there.

We suppose that every other station that is used by so many people in the world has an announcer of the trains which enables people to stay in the warmth of the waiting room until it is announced that their train is ready.

Think how Boston is treated compared with other cities, and especially with New York! Consider the old-fashioned South Station and then think of the beautiful, wonderful Grand Central Station in New York. Boston and New England paid for half of that station in New York, and big as it is, with the New York Central emptying into it, it does not compare with the South Station in the number of people who use it. Think of the beauty and grandeur of the Pennsylvania Station in New York! Yet it does not compare with the North Station in the number of people who use it.

More painful still is the contrast between the character of the power used on all trains entering and leaving the New York stations and the Boston stations. In New York they will not tolerate the use of coal, and the trains are obliged to use electric locomotives, and the air is clean and fresh in the New York stations and not poisoned by smoke and coal gas and undirtied by soot. If anybody attempts to justify this difference between the treatment of the people of Boston and New England and the treatment of New York by saying that New York is a bigger city and has more people, tell them it is not the size of the city nor its wealth which should determine such things, but the number of those who use the service. Those who pay the bills should get the benefit. It is not the number who live in New York, but the number in New York who use the stations that pay for them. It is not the number who live in Boston, but it is the number who use the stations that pay for them, and when more people in Boston and her suburbs use her stations and have worse stations than the fewer that use their stations in New York, then the people in Boston who use their stations are being taxed by the railroad for the benefit of the people in New York.

The reason for it is that those who control the railroads, without having any money invested in them, live in New York and make it their headquarters.

How long are the people of New York and other sections going to make us a mere province?

How Some Stories of Football Games Sound

(But not when written by Boston American Experts)

By W. L. D.

FIRST QUARTER

THE crimson sun was setting—
Forty thousand eyes were glued
Upon the greensward* of the Bowl
Where husky giants wooed
Dame Fortune with a pigskin
That shone like burnished gold.
A-down Time's halls 'mongst hoary grads
This tale will oft be told.

SECOND QUARTER

HEAR Harvard's cohorts* split the air—
With nine long Harvard cheers—
See Yale's despairing, hoping hosts
Sit knee deep in their tears.
And over all with brooding mien
Suggestive of the past,
In feline form a Tiger's wraith*
In black and orange cast.

THIRD QUARTER

WILL Murphy cross the Crimson line?
As Hogan did of old;
Can Harvard's stalwart* forwards stem the Blue tide?
Can they hold?
The scoreboard tabulator
Imitates St. Vitus' dance.
Ah! what a marionette he'd make
If Sarg gave him a chance!

FOURTH QUARTER

THE ball is snapped—the forwards crunch—
Look, look! He's breaking through—
Hey, Fisher! What's his number?
Excusez-moi, Bob, si vous plais,
But what's a guy to do?
I paid six bones to see this game—
I'm going to see it through.

THIS WAY OUT!

THE dance—the serpentine is on;
What colors dot the field?
My eyes are blurred and blood-shot,
My nose by cold is peeled.
"I knew they'd win—I told you so"*
Ah, there's the Crimson sun!
For the love of Mike, cut out the bull!
Just tell us which team won.

Sisters Under the Skin?

WHAT is the American Duchess of Roxburgh, formerly May Goelet of the New York multimillionaire family, going to do about her new musical comedy sister-in-law, Jose Collins?

What will be the effect of her brother-in-law's marriage upon the brilliant and dignified social career which the Duchess has been working out for herself since 1903.

She finds herself saddled with a sister-in-law who has appeared for years at the Tivoli and other music halls in London and has starred in lively skits on this side. It does not help matters that Miss Collins' mother, Lottie, introduced the famous "Ta-ra-ra-ra-boom-de-ay" to America many years ago.

Not only that, but Jose, now Lady Innesker, has a past of her own. She was divorced by her first husband, an English captain, in 1919. Queen Mary has just ordered that no divorced woman be received in the British court. She expects the nobility to follow her example and have nothing to do socially with divorcees.

Altogether, May Goelet has a very pretty social problem on her hands. Read all about it in the Boston Sunday Advertiser's Magazine Section on Sunday.

George Bernard Shaw gives in the next Boston Sunday Advertiser his impressions of "Woman as I Have Seen Her"—from the "upholstered" days of his infancy in 1860 down to the present. There will be much feminine protest at his breezy description of women's fashions.

Two more of George Ade's New Fables in Slang appear in the next issue of the Boston Sunday Advertiser. Their titles alone will make you want to read them—"The Girl With a Handicap Who Had to Lock Up Her Parents," and "The Two Wives Who Talked About Their Husbands."

These and many other special features. You cannot afford to miss the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

To the Editor

Urges Ford Read "Today"

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir—I wish to compliment you and your little, short stories that are under the heading of "Today." I take a great deal of interest in reading them, and the one that you had in Tuesday's issue is the best of them all. I regret that England and Henry Ford do not read your papers, as I am sure they would learn a great deal.

Respectfully yours,
SAMUEL LEPOFF,
Portland, Me.

MR. K. C. B., Boston American, Boston—Dear Sir: On September 29th we mailed to you our check No. 737, Corn Exchange Bank, for 75 cents for royalties due you. We are informed by our bank that this has not been presented for payment. Will you kindly deposit this at once and oblige. Yours very truly,

D—— & CO., Book Publishers.

GENTLEMEN:
ON SEPT. 28,
IN THE evening.
WE SAT down.
AND WROTE a letter.
TO HARRY Leon Wilson.
AND RECALLED.
THAT ONE time.
FIVE YEARS ago.
ON A large rock.
IN THE front yard.
OF THE Wilson home.
WE SAT down.
THE TWO of us.
AND WHILE the surf.
FROM THE broad. Bacific.
CAME ROLLING in.
AND BROKE itself.
AGAINST THE base.
OF THE very rock.
ON WHICH we sat.
HARRY SAID to me.
SOMEWHAT LIKE this
"THE ONLY market.
"FOR A writer's stuff.
"IS BACK in the East.
"AND YOU'VE got something.
"THAT THE East will like.
"AND YOU'LL be back there.
"IN A year or so.
"AND AFTER you've started.
"GET OUT a book.
"WITH SOME of your columns.
"AND KEEP on doing it.
"AND AFTER awhile.
"YOU CAN come back here.
"AND BUILD a home."
AND, MR. Publishers.
I WANT to tell you.
I SENT the check.
FOR 75 cents.
OUT TO Mr. Wilson.
AS THE first payment.
ON THE new home.

I THANK you.

OUR HEROES! HOW DO WE CARE FOR THEM

ABOUT a year ago the Hearst papers, in big stories teeming with startling truths, shocked the American people into a realization of the shameful manner in which the national government had treated our sick and maimed heroes of the terrible World War.

Suffering caused by neglect, misery caused by redtape, and physical and vocational improvement retarded because of the abuse by bureaucrats of what little and belated legislation Congress had enacted, were depicted in a manner that gripped the sympathies of a grateful people.

By doing that the Hearst papers exerted a powerful influence in the drive which secured beneficial laws that have brought some happiness to the broken service men and their families.

There has been a big change for the better in a year, but the measure of governmental generosity is not full by any means.

The American Red Cross has helped wonderfully in the good work, both by intelligent demonstration of the necessity for beneficial legislation and in succoring the suffering in hospitals and homes; in making adequate, by their contribution of money and service, the care and treatment of those who have been the victims of governmental shortsightedness.

Next Sunday the Hearst papers will begin a series of special articles, to be published for three successive Sundays, which will give the results of a thorough survey of the field of the disabled just completed and reported by the writer of the pioneer articles.

They will present a truthful picture of the existing situation. They will describe the bettered conditions. They will point out what should be done.

They will indicate what must be done to save the country from a scourge of tuberculous and mental wrecks.

Former service men and women and every patriotic American will appreciate and approve them.

In the meantime, until what must be done by Congress has been made effective, the Red Cross will continue to make up for neglect and deficiencies to the very best of its ability.

The "very best of its ability" depends largely upon every reader of this paper; depends upon how every one of us responds to the "Fourth Roll-call" of the Boston chapter, which ends November 25.

As we measure our help now so must the Boston Red Cross measure its help to our disabled soldiers and their dependents in the days to come until the country, through official agencies, measures up to its full duty.

This Red Cross appeal is not alone for a loosening of your pursestrings, but also for a quickening of your heart-strings. Here it is:

"The bulk of the $200,000 asked of the people of Boston is to be used for the benefit of disabled soldiers, sailors and marines and their families, whom the Boston Metropolitan Chapter is now serving to the number of 5,775. Without money the work must stop. Today, two years after the armistice, many of our boys are still lying in the hospitals being ministered to by the Red Cross as the one officially recognized body for the doing of that service. It would seem then that the doing of this duty is one which faces the American people more squarely than any other."

Why must the Red Cross carry on this humane work of vast proportions and imperative necessity? What about the duty of the national government? All this will be told in the next three Sunday issues of the Hearst papers. So, therefore,

Respond generously to the Red Cross rollcall.

Read those special articles on the country's duty in the Hearst Sunday papers.

Remember that both are for the benefit of those whose happiness should be the first concern of a grateful people—our disabled soldiers, sailors, marines, their mothers, wives and children, and the fine women who nursed them from the shambles overseas to the hospitals of their homeland.

No better indorsement could be given of "this magnificent organization" as Cardinal Gibbons calls it, than his simple expression that all its projects make for "the increased health and happiness of America."

And, first of all, above all else, all of us should be true Americans in our impulses.

Smiles

It Isn't Being Done.

When an actor needs help the actors get up a benefit performance for him; when a ball player is down and out the other players arrange a game and give him the gate receipts, but have you ever heard of poets pulling off a tournament for the benefit of a busted bard?

IT'S A POOR PLAN

Some men complain as if they thought
That by refusing to be glad
They spited all the rest and brought Remorse upon a world that ought
In simple fairness to be sad.

ASCENT OF ALTITUDES ABOUND IN ROMANCE

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest.

"I enjoyed your article on Bench Marks very much, and thought I would ask if the altitude of a place could not be found by the difference in the air pressure at different altitudes?—E. J. A., Wenona, Ill."

YES, that is one of the most used methods of finding altitudes. The instrument employed for the purpose is a barometer, either a mercurial or an aneroid barometer, the former being by far the better but also by far the more difficult to transport in ascending mountains, because of its relatively great size, its awkward form and its delicacy of construction.

If you will read some of the extremely interesting accounts of the great mountain ascents, made especially in the last half of the nineteenth century by Professor John Tyndall, Clarence King, Edward Whymper and others, constituting a unique feature of literature (which may never be revived now that aerial navigation has afforded a more rapid and an incomparably easier way of attaining great elevations)—if, I say, you will read these fascinating and instructive narratives, in which steady science clasps hands with breathless adventure, you will be impressed more than once by the extreme precautions taken by the climbers to protect their mercurial barometers from injury, and you will occasionally feel a sympathetic pang over the unfortunate fate of one of these instruments after it had been got, perhaps with days of toil and danger, almost to the summit of some sky-piercing peak, whose elevation above the dim earth beneath it alone would have been competent to reveal.

The principle of the barometer you, no doubt, know. Its action depends upon the fact that the pressure of the atmosphere diminishes with increase of height above the earth. The less the pressure, and greater the height, the lower the mercury stands in the long, narrow, glass tube. When Whymper climbed Chimborazo he carried a long barometer in a case strapped to a man's back. When, after days of gradual struggling upward, with intervals of rest, they at last reached the tremendous summit:

"The wind blew hard from the northeast and drove the light snow before it viciously. We were hungry, wet, numb and wretched, laden with instruments which could not be used. With much trouble the mercurial barometer was set up; one man grasped the tripod to keep it firm, while the others stood to windward, holding up a poncho to give a little protection.' The mercury fell to 14.1 inches with a temperature of 21 degrees Fahrenheit, and lower it would not go."

At sea level the barometer stands near thirty inches. The sixteen inches of drop represented, according to Mr. Whymper's calculations, a height of 20,545 feet. His reference to the temperature serves to point out the fact that the height of the mercury alone is not enough to determine an elevation.

Mercury, as an ordinary thermometer shows, is affected by changes of temperature, even when there is no change of elevation. Consequently, the temperature at the time and place of observation must always be carefully noted.

But while, with careful work, very close approximations to the true elevation may be obtained with a mercurial barometer, yet the instrument is subject to various slight sources of error, and, when extreme accuracy is required, as in the work of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the method of levelling, which I have before described, is employed.

This, however, is very laborious when attempted among high and rugged mountains, and for lofty peaks the results obtained by barometric observations are supplemented by yet another method of measurement, which is a true surveying operation, since it depends upon the use of a measured base-line and of measured angles.

It's the Fashion, Son!

If Daisy shows a foot or two
Of silken hose, I beg of you
Don't think her modesty has flew—
Why, Sonny, that's the fashion.

If at the dance you see Alaire
With talcum powdered spine quite bare,
Don't gnash your teeth and tear your hair —
Why, Sonny, that's the fashion.

If some fair salesgirl in your shop
Is choking on a lollypop,
Don't tell her she will have to stop—
Why, Sonny, that's the fashion.

They cover up each shell-like ear
And make their lips a carmine smear,
But please don't think they've gone plumb queer—
It's really just the fashion.
